F. D. R. Calls Battle Against Inflation as Vital as Fighting War

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told the nation tonight that a fight against inflation was as vital as the fighting on the war fronts and that it "calls for co-operation and restraint on the part of every group."

All Physicians Are in the War, McNutt Asserts

By LAMAR BALL.

Surgeons of the southeast gathered in Atlanta yesterday for the interchange of professional discoveries heard from Colonel Fred W. Rankin, of Lexington, Ky., president-elect of the American Medical Association that before the end of this year 23,000 of the nation's 150,000 physicians will be in the Army and Navy, in uniform, struggling to save the lives of the men in the armed forces.

A few minutes later, those same surgeons were warned by Paul V. McNutt, as spokesman from the national government in Washington, that many of them will find their routine lives disrupted by America's demand for an all-out health program, that the surplus of doctors in cities will be spread out to take over the health problems in the mushroom boom towns that are the natural outgrowth of war.

"Every one of you is serving voluntarily within your community," McNutt told the silent doctors. "That is the obligation of war."

No Dislocations. "Every one of you will be given the opportunity to participate in a problem that is being vigorously approached, thanks to the enthusiastic collaboration of America's physicians."

"That does not mean unformed service. It means intelligent assignment to the points of greatest need."

"There is no intention to dislocate essential medical service—let me emphasize that point. "Need I say that, in common with every soldier and sailor, every industrial worker, and every engineer, we are all in the Army now. This is a total war. The alternative to service and discipline now is a Nazi straight jacket in years to come."

McNutt, federal security administrator, led up to this high point in his speech by drawing a graphic picture of the mushroom growth of villages and towns into cramped industrial areas where the eyes are being forged to defeat the nation's enemies.

He emphasized the sudden boom of Charleston, Ind., from a mere spot on the map with a population of 900 to a hurly-burly city six months later where 30,000 men were working day and night on war production and 600 buildings were being slapped up as fast as carpenters could put them together.

The McNutt speech was the highlight of the opening day's program of the Southeastern Surgical Congress in its 13th annual post-graduate assembly. The convention continued on Page 2, Column 3.

'Springy' Weather To Banish Winds

Diminishing winds and warmer temperatures will be Atlanta's weather menu for today, Glen Jefferson, official weather forecaster, said yesterday as he brushed the wind-driven dust from his eyes. The winds, which blew steadily all day yesterday, will vanish during the night, and Atlantans should enjoy real springlike weather, he said. Temperatures yesterday ranged from 36 to 50 degrees.

Walnut 6565 Makes Problems Do a Nose-Dive

Firms and families all over Atlanta, all over Georgia and the south have long depended on the Want Ad pages of The Constitution to help them solve their sales and household problems. When you have a proposition to put before a great big, compact audience, a call to Walnut 6565 is the most satisfactory way to arrange a hearing.

Reds Complete Encirclement; 15,000 Killed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, March 9.—The Russian capture of Sychevka in a deep wedge between Rzhev and Vyazma was believed tonight to have virtually completed a second huge-scale encirclement of German forces on the front northwest of Moscow.

The new thrust 125 miles due west of Moscow apparently hemmed in, but for a narrow bottleneck to the southwest, the German forward position at Rzhev.

In addition it added to the peril of the Nazi hold on Vyazma and possibly cleared the way for the setting of a third trap there. Observers here regarded the German position at Rzhev, on the upper Volga, as in greatest peril. Rzhev had been flanked to the north and partly cut off to the west earlier by the Red army's advance past the Valdai hills.

Broadcasts from Axis sources said strong units of the Nazi air force had been thrown into the fight in an attempt to save the 16th German army, caught in a tightening trap in the Staraya Russa area farther north.

Despite the blows by the German bombers, the Russians were said to be attacking the fortified siege lines east and south of Leningrad with increasing power and massing for a cleanup at Staraya Russa.

Qualified London sources said the Russians had moved substantial reinforcements into the area southwest of Lake Ilmen and had massed a strong army farther south behind the frozen Kholm marshes.

Thus, these sources said, Premier Stalin's forces were in position to smash telling blows at any German attempt to save the trapped 16th army by a power drive from the Baltic states.

The Russian communiqué said 2,500 German soldiers had been wiped out in three days of fierce fighting around Leningrad, and dispatches from the front west of Moscow said almost 15,000 other Germans were killed in the recapture of Sychevka.

German dispatches reaching Stockholm said new snowstorms had brought fighting virtually to a stop in the Kerch peninsula in the Crimea.

CAME THE WIND, A LITTLE LATE—Atlanta shoppers yesterday had both hands full, holding their hats on with one hand, and their skirts down with the other, as March, famed for lusty winds, greeted Atlanta with the first heavy blow of the season. Here's a typical scene on Peachtree street as overcoats and skirts flapped in the breezes, and as hats expressed a desire to join the air corps. At times the wind was so strong people had great difficulty walking against it.

Don't Fret, Ladies—Read This

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—The War Production Board reassured American women today there would be no regimentation of feminine dress under a forthcoming conservation order which will outlaw radical style changes for the duration of the war.

R. R. Guthrie, chief of the textiles and clothing branch, said the order, to be issued soon, would leave designers room for plenty of ingenuity in producing clothes that are "new, salable and fresh in appeal."

The order, it was said, will "more or less freeze" today's slim fashion silhouette, and deal with maximum lengths and sweeps of skirts.

As far as skirt lengths are concerned, officials said women and dresses are of such a variety of types that any over-all decree as to length would be impossible. But they acknowledged skirts probably would not get much longer during the war, and may necessarily be shorter.

The general aim of the "freezing" is to head off any fashion upheaval that would send women scurrying for the new modes, leaving unused wardrobes perfectly wearable but obsolete from the style standpoint.

Such a style change could cause a waste of materials already cut and a heavy demand for new materials at a time when military requirements are exhausting the resources of textile producers.

Fabrics will be conserved, by provisions eliminating jackets over dresses, top coats over suits and similar ensembles. Hems probably will be shorter and seams narrower.

"It is not and has not been the desire to eliminate style as a factor in women's and children's apparel," Guthrie said.

"We are fully cognizant of the importance of fashion and fashion creators to the garment and retail grades and to the general field of public morale."

The textile executive said that military demands made it necessary, nevertheless, to anticipate shortages of wool, flax and leather.

Georgia Marine Flyer Revealed as Hero of Wake Island Defense

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—United States submarines steadily slashing away at Japan's long supply line in the western Pacific have sunk a large destroyer and naval tanker, and put an aircraft carrier and three cruisers out of action with torpedo hits, the Navy reported today.

This bag of enemy warships resulted from actions during the week ending March 6, and made up probably the most successful seven-day period for American undersea craft since the war in the Pacific began three months ago.

Naval authorities here noted especially that every ship sunk or damaged except one was a warship. The general area of the sinkings was not given, but these authorities speculated that it probably was in the vicinity of Java, where the enemy last week had concentrated his forces for the attack on that Netherlands island.

High Rate of Loss.

They also said that this rate of loss for the Japanese was extremely high in view of their constantly increasing problem of protecting their supply lines which now extend 3,000 miles from Yokohama to Batavia.

No details of the submarine actions were available here. The Navy communiqué, No. 52, simply summarized the enemy's losses as follows:

One destroyer leader sunk, one large naval tanker sunk, and an aircraft carrier and three cruisers put out of action. The aircraft carrier, otherwise unidentified, and one of the cruisers each was hit twice by torpedoes.

It was considered possible that some of the four vessels listed as damaged were actually sunk, but even though they were not they would be out of action for three months or more, naval experts declared.

Important Vessels. The destroyer leader was described as an overseas destroyer which would normally head a flotilla of destroyers. It probably was a vessel of more than 2,000 tons. Size of the tanker was estimated at 12,000 to 14,000 tons, or possibly more. None of the other ships was sufficiently identified to make estimates of size possible.

The successful attacks against these six raised to 138 the total of Japanese vessels of all types sunk to date by American armed forces in the Pacific. Many of these have been attributed to United States submarines. In continued on Page 5, Column 3.

British Army Evacuates Rangoon

Central Office Voted For Fulton Defense

The goal of a unified command for all defense activities in Fulton county was in sight yesterday as the executive committee of the county defense council voted to establish a central control office.

Another step toward streamlining defense in this section was the appointment by Erle Coker, fifth district chairman, of Elfred S. Papy, president of the White Provision Company, as co-ordinator of the fifth district and the establishment of a co-ordination office at 242 Peachtree street.

Unanimous Vote. The motion to set up a central office for the whole county was made by Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, commander of the Atlanta defense organization, and seconded by Gus Harper. It was voted unanimously. Chairman Charles J. Currie, of the Fulton county defense council, then appointed a committee consisting of himself, Harper and County Commissioner Charlie Brown to find suitable headquarters. City and county governments will be asked to pay the expenses of the office.

Chiefs of all sections of civilian defense—fire, police, air-raid wardens, medical and others—all direct county-wide activities during an emergency and dispatch supplementary aid where needed. An official of the telephone company said a system of telephonic communications could be ready for use within a few days after establishment of the central office.

"Chief Headache." General Peyton said the "chief headache" of the present Atlanta organization, was communications.

Japs Throw 3 Americans Into 'Hell' Prison

CHUNGKING, March 9.—(AP)—Vaughn Meisling, Associated Press correspondent who was captured when the Japanese occupied Hongkong, and two other Americans have been transferred to Stanley prison as a sequel to the failure of Japanese attempts to induce them to sign statements saying they were well treated, it was reported here today.

Recent arrivals from the fallen British crown colony said conditions of privation prevail at the prison, with but one bowl of rice and a bowl of watery soup served daily. As a result of Japanese refusal to supply medical supplies, it was said, many of the prisoners are suffering from dysentery.

Appointment Praised. Papy's appointment was praised by Mayor LeCraw, who said: "He is capable and efficient." Papy's office, said Coker, will be staffed by specialists in all the civilian defense training programs.

The Fulton county executive committee at its meeting yesterday heard reports on activities of various sections. Chief Air Raid Warden Mike Benton said organization in all zones was progressing favorably. County Police Lieutenant Paul Dows reported 900 additional wardens were in training and the number would shortly grow to 2,000.

Doctors J. H. Hackney and R. F. Payne gave an account of the organization of medical services in case of an emergency.

Aussies Are Prepared For Scorching Earth

MELBOURNE, Tuesday, March 10.—(AP)—Spurred by the big-scale Japanese invasion of New Guinea, the Australian government today took over broad powers to put private and public property to the torch, kill livestock and remove civilians from any threatened area of this continental commonwealth.

The scorched-earth policy embodied in the new national security regulations calls for destruction of airports, railways, roads, mines, reservoirs, buildings—anything and everything which might be of value to the enemy.

Bearing evidence to the urgency of Australia's situation, heavy Japanese bombers yesterday attacked Port Moresby, New Guinea, in a quick follow-up of seaborne landings on the northeast coast of that big island whose control is a prerequisite to assaulting the Australian mainland.

Port Moresby, principal city on the part-Dutch, part-Australian island, is only about 300 miles by air from Cape York on the Australian mainland.

Some Damage. The city, which has been raided sporadically in the past, reported some damage but no casualties in the attack on military installations by 10 big Japanese bombers.

The raid came less than 24 hours after strong forces of Japanese troops landed at Salamaua and Lae under a shower of bombs from low-flying Australian planes. An Australian communiqué described the landing parties as clearly of considerable size.

Lae was shelled by a Japanese squadron of cruisers and destroyers and bombed from the air as a prelude to the landing.

Strategic Port Abandoned To Jap Onslaught

MANDALAY, March 9.—(9.30 P. M., Burma Time—10.50 A. M., Eastern War Time)—(AP)—The British army has evacuated Rangoon, it was announced here tonight.

The Japanese had bypassed Pegu in their haste to occupy the strategic supply port of the road to China. Presumably they drove on Rangoon both from the north and the east.

Reports reaching here tonight said that Japanese patrols also had been encountered near Tharawaddy, about 70 miles north of Rangoon on the road to Prome—the only main highway left to the United Nations in Burma.

The British reported they had mopped up this patrol, but new infiltrations were expected.

Public utilities at Bassein, about 90 miles west of Rangoon on the Irrawaddy river delta, have already been destroyed, it was understood here. This indicated the British were conceding the loss of all southern Burma.

Handing over the start of the campaign by insufficient troops and equipment and lacking air power for counteroffensive.

Social Security Needed for Morale, McNutt Asserts Here

By RALPH MCGILL.

Handsome and intelligent Paul V. McNutt, former Governor of Indiana, former Governor of the Commonwealth of the Philippines and present federal security administrator, offers two exhibits in his field:

France threw away its system of social security. And fell.

England not only kept her system of social security, but extended and enlarged it.

England stood up. Social security, Administrator McNutt believes, has a more profound effect on the morale of a people than any other single factor.

Nation Loses Faith.

The people of France, suspicious of their government, lost all faith and spirit when that nation cast away all the social security measures provided through the years.

Here for a speech to the Southern Surgical Congress, before the problems of war and medicine, McNutt made a splendid and lasting impression.

Long before the nation seriously was concerned with social security, Paul McNutt was risking his political career by having the state of Indiana adopt a state plan of social security.

Today he believes that: Social security benefits must be increased above the bare minimum now provided.

Extension of System.

Social security must be extended so as to include domestics, farm workers and others now employed but not protected by the law. He also believes the whole system of retirement benefits must be revamped so that we will have a real national system.

Social security must, eventually and inevitably, be federalized because unemployment is not a state problem but indisputably is a national problem. A firm believer in states' rights, he does not think a real social security system can be worked as desired except on a national plan.

He points out that opposition to social security still comes from that group of employers who always have fought it; who wish now to destroy it, and who helped defeat the recent labor displacement bill by confusing the issue.

Pressure on Bill.

That bill, which would have provided for the payment and employment of those men displaced by the shutdown of the nation's huge automobile industry during the conversion from peace-time to war-time production, specifically protected the rights of the states under the social security laws.

It in no way conflicted with those rights but instead went out of the way to care for them.

Yet some state administrators, fearful for their jobs, and some governors who had not read the bill and who had been confused about it, brought enough pressure to defeat it.

The bill never was intended to provide merely payment for the men.

Six weeks and more are required for the actual retooling of the automobile plants for the making of new automobile models. This money would have enabled the automobile industry to become geared for war in a shorter period of time.

Tribute to Filipinos.

When he talks about the Philippines, where he was governor for two and a half years, his face changes. The tragedy of it puts a shadow on him.

He pays a great tribute to the native soldiers of the islands and to the people. They will, he insists, with few exceptions remain loyal to the American flag. They know that in 40 years the American government has raised their standard of living higher than that of any other people in the Pacific.

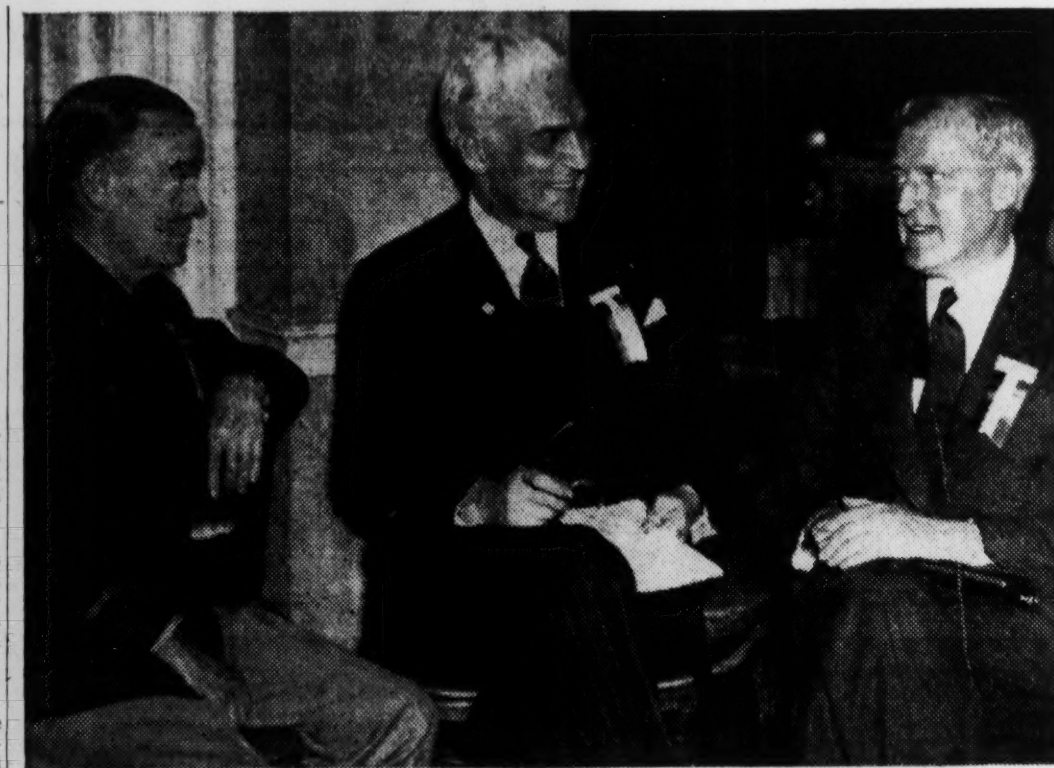

MacArthur, whom he knows well, must remain with his men, says McNutt. He believes MacArthur, who has authority to make that decision, would refuse any order to leave.

"He and his men," he said, "are writing a chapter in history which will never be torn from the books."

Indicates Long War.

A great many of his friends in civil life remain in Manila and he is fearful of their safety. The war looks like a long one, he says, admitting he is no prophet. If Australia should fall it will be even longer.

This country must be prepared to hear much more bad news and must be prepared to take it for many months before we can strike. We must wait until we are ready to strike with effective force. An offensive before we are ready would be fatal.

ASKS ALL-OUT HEALTH PROGRAM—Declaring that all physicians are in the war, Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, yesterday called upon members of the Southeastern Medical Congress, meeting here, for an all-out health program for the nation. Shown talking a few moments before he made his address are Colonel Fred Rankin, Army Medical Corps; McNutt, and Dr. R. M. Wilder, noted nutrition authority.

All Physicians Are in the War, McNutt Asserts

tion of surgeons from all points of the southeast will continue today and tomorrow at the Biltmore hotel.

Drain Emphasized.

Just before McNutt spoke, the surgeons heard Colonel Rankin emphasize the drain that the critical needs of the soldiers in the far-flung battle lines and the equally critical needs of the civilian population at home will put on the doctors of the nation—a bit too few for a monstrous all-out effort. Colonel Rankin was in uniform.

"The young men now in medical school or internship," said Colonel Rankin, "will not be taken into service until after the completion of their medical work."

"Men over 50 also will be eliminated from military duty and assigned to the care of the civilian population."

"This is a young man's war. In the present mechanized warfare, doctors must be men in excellent physical condition, able to follow the troops along swiftly moving battle lines."

"Many physicians and surgeons, now retired from active practice, will find it necessary to go back into practice and take the places of the physicians and surgeons called into the armed services."

Another Challenge.

And as McNutt pointed out: "Mechanized war presents another challenge to physicians. Despite our best efforts at prevention, despite all physicians and engineers can do, we face, as the President has phrased it, 'unhappy casualty prospects.'"

"Mechanized brigades may mean fewer deaths, but they are likely to mean more minor casualties, more mangled fingers, useless arms, crippled legs. Production of mechanized equipment, by multiplying the content of the industrial process, will mean more industrial casualties."

"As we face that sad prospect, total war has made a fundamental change in our attitude toward the disabled. No longer shall we regard rehabilitation as a humanitarian or 'welfare' measure designed to salvage the self-respect or provide incidental income for the disabled individual. He is a person, a valuable person. He must be rehabilitated, vocationally trained, not merely for his own good, but because the nation needs him. And not vocationally trained in some obscure handicraft, the products of which are intended for Fifth Avenue shops or roadside tourist stands. He must be fitted for a place in the main stream of American production. Industry

Specialist Seeks Specialist When He Gets 'Tummy' Ache

Doctors are more highly specialized than the public realizes.

After the Southeastern Surgical Congress luncheon yesterday, one eminent doctor, whose practice is limited to bone surgery, emerged from the dining hall at the Biltmore hotel, and looked a trifle pale under the gills.

He saw a stomach specialist approaching. "Oh," moaned the bone surgeon, "I'm glad I saw you, doctor. I feel a bit dizzy. Do you think I ate too much?"

diaphragm. These are measured by rolling production lines in peace or in war.

"Planes and tanks. Ships and guns. Shoes and shirts and coats. Enough for victory. Wave upon wave to wipe the forces of tyranny and aggression from the face of the earth."

"Enough for abundance. Well clothed. Well fed, well housed. Security and opportunity for every man, woman and child."

"These are the measures of health. America in peace or in war cannot afford—dare not afford—anything but the best your great profession can do for us."

"It is too bad we lost time. It is too bad it took a war to wake us up."

"For little Johnny's crippled bones, Billy's cough, Mike's teeth might have been the margin between freedom and slavery."

War, Illness Force Delay in Jury Launching

Only 15 of 34 Jurors Report for Duty of March Term.

Inroads made by the war into jury lists yesterday forced Judge E. Marvin Underwood to postpone to tomorrow launching the March federal grand jury on its investigations of accumulated criminal cases.

Only 15 out of a venire of 36 jurors reported for duty, one less than the minimum required by law before a grand jury can act. Reasons for absence were that jurors were engaged in military service, defense occupations or, in a few cases, were ill.

Fourteen new veniremen were drawn and the jury is expected to reassemble at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to consider internal revenue cases, the court's first sabotage case of this war, a few narcotic and postal violations.

Jurors reporting yesterday were: David B. Stewart, George H. Keller, Luther Castleberry, Homer H. Turner, Nathan J. Wooding Jr., J. Sherrard Kennedy, John T. Taylor, Olin G. Bartfield, James W. Wilson, Benjamin B. Blackburn, James Roy Turner, Samuel F. Roberts, Harold S. Rice, Charles W. Isbell and John Hallman.

New jurors called were Walter A. Beaumont, W. Paul Carpenter, Charles F. Clippinger, George P. Moore, John K. Daniel, J. Harold Stallworth, Joe A. Brown, Isaac S. Mitchell, Leonidas F. McDonald, James S. Budd Jr., Joseph B. McCrary, Samuel F. Pittard Jr., William J. Gilbert and Leory W. Watson Jr.

"On the long road to victory, we are learning the place of the healer. Little Johnny's crippled bones, Billy's cough, Mike's teeth. These mean neither bowed heads, nor mere pain. They are not to be measured in welfare budgets. No, not any more."

New Measure.

"Health has a new measure. Good teeth. Sound legs. Ruddy skin. The deep, steady whip of the surgeon general of the Public Health Service.

"Pershing, in France, placed the French houses of prostitution out of bounds. He maintained, throughout the war, and brought home the most disease-free army in history."

"So important is venereal disease protection, in the eyes of the congress and of military and civilian medical authorities, that the policing of local areas can be taken over by the Department of Justice for the repression of prostitution, if local communities do not do their job."

"Some local officials did not want to close their red-light districts. They assured us they had the situation well in hand. Off the record, they said they believed in segregated districts. The record, however, is going to embarrass those gentlemen."

"Preliminary reports which I have seen in some of the communities where these districts have been closed indicate that more than half of the prostitutes taken into custody were infected with syphilis or gonorrhea, or both."

"Need I add more to tell you what their closing means in terms of venereal disease control?"

Sikorsky Sees Helicopter as Big War Aid

Small Takeoff Space for Device Invaluable, Designer Says.

By TOM MCRAE.

Igor Sikorsky, the Russian plane designer who is responsible for the great clipper ships, yesterday foresaw an important place in the war for the helicopter—regarded by most people ignorant of flying as sort of an aerial monstrosity.

He will speak at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Georgia Tech auditorium under the auspices of the Tech Lecture Association.

The little Russian is enthusiastic about this strange device that will stand still in the air, like a hummingbird.

He admits the helicopter has "no past and little present," but he says, convincingly, it has an "immense future."

Small Takeoff Space.

Sikorsky says the helicopter won't replace any planes now used, though it can do the work of captive balloons in several instances. The great thing about the helicopter, he says, is that it does not need any big field to take off from or to land on. It can take off and land on the proverbial dime.

Sikorsky says it can operate from ship to ship and ship to shore. It can be used for shore patrol and submarine patrol and direct firing of big guns.

Pointing to the doctors milling in the lobby of the Biltmore, Sikorsky said, "The helicopter will help them. In war or peace time. It is a great factor in treating the sick or wounded. The helicopter will provide a way to render quick assistance. Its speed is from 120 to 150 miles an hour."

Little is known about the helicopter's place in the present war but Sikorsky said it is believed the Germans and Russians are using them.

Economic Output.

Sikorsky said that before long he thought helicopters could be made fairly rapidly and economically.

In the first World War the Russians were the first to do heavy bombardment by air. Sikorsky in 1913 designed the four-engined bomber they used.

Sikorsky made the headlines in 1934 when his S-42, long-distance flying seaplane, smashed eight records in one flight. The four-motored S-42 previously had established two other records. It was used next year by Pan American and was really the first of the clipper ships.

Sikorsky is engineering manager of the Vought-Sikorsky division of United Aircraft Corporation, but he very politely refused to reveal what type of ships they are making for the Army and Navy or to discuss them even in the most general terms. "Military secrets," he smiles.

Like all other aviation men, Sikorsky says that air power is the "most important factor" in the war.

Free Assistance For War Contracts

To clarify the impression of "some manufacturers" that they must pay commissions or "finders' fees" to special agents to obtain war contracts or subcontracts, J. Verlyn Booth, state director in Georgia for the contract distribution branch, issued a statement advising would-be contractors of the free assistance available at the government field offices.

"It has come to my attention that some manufacturers have the impression they must hire commission men, special agents or 'experts' to obtain war contracts or subcontracts," Booth said. "Actually no firm need pay commissions or 'finders' fees in obtaining government work."

The contract distribution branch, production division, of the War Production Board, has established field offices in Atlanta at 150 Hurt building where manufacturers may obtain, without charge, information as to war work which government agencies and prime contractors have to let. Booth pointed out.

Morgenthau Shields Poor From Tax Shift

Low-Pay Group Pictured as Carrying Its Share of Burden.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP) Treasury Secretary Morgenthau asserted today the low income class in the country "is making its fair contribution in taxes," and warned that "selfish interests" are seeking to shift part of their tax responsibility to poorer persons.

At a press conference, the secretary said, "There are some people who think they can take a little load off themselves and put it on the underdog."

"I want to say that no further taxes should be levied upon these lowest income groups until every other avenue of revenue has been exhausted and every loophole has been closed."

He said the statement applied to proposals for sales taxes, or lowering personal income tax exemptions and similar ideas.

Earlier in the day, M. L. Seidman, chairman of the New York Board of Trade taxation committee, had suggested to the House Ways and Means Committee that congress wipe out all personal exemptions for normal income tax purposes. He said "there is no justification for personal exemptions under present circumstances."

Morgenthau said his research staff had made a study showing that the average single person earning $750 a year—the personal income tax exemption for a single person—already pays $130 or 17.3 per cent of his income in both direct and indirect federal, state and local taxes while a married person earning $1,500 a year—also the income tax exemption—pays about $250, or 16.7 per cent of his income in such taxes.

Japs Overrun Java As Dutch Admit Fall of Bandoeng

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)—The last great Dutch position on Java, Bandoeng on the high plateau, has fallen and the Japanese enemy, now having overrun substantially all the island, appeared tonight to be stamping out the last bright, gallant sparks of Dutch resistance.

The imperial Japanese headquarters officially claimed that the main Allied bodies—83,000 Dutch and 5,000 British and American troops—had surrendered unconditionally about Bandoeng and Soerabaja, the latter the great naval base in the eastern island.

Of this, there was no confirmation here, but there could be no certain disproof of it for again there was only silence from the far, tortured battleground of Java.

Surrender Idea Rejected. Still, based on their prior information of the defenders' plans and on their firm belief that only death could make the capitulation, Netherlands authorities here rejected the idea of any such total surrender and expressed the conviction that Dutchmen still were fighting whenever and wherever a single company could make a useful stand.

The Netherlands exile government in London issued a categorical statement that any arrangements toward cessation of hostilities with Japan were "out of the question," and pointed out:

"No communication exists between the Netherlands government and the Netherlands East Indies. The enemy is therefore free to circulate any stories which he may think useful.

"The actual military position on the islands is not known. The military commanders, including those having been instructed to fight to the last. They have freedom of action where resistance would no longer serve any useful purpose.

"Whatever the outcome of the military operations in the Netherlands East Indies, the powers of the Netherlands authorities, whether military or civil, do not extend beyond arrangements regarding cessation of local military operations."

Arriving by airplane in Australia with 14 other Netherlands officials, Lieutenant Governor-General Hubertus Van Mook announced:

"Our people are battling on with the resources they have left."

One authorized Netherlands source was quoted by the Dutch news agency Aneta:

"We Dutchmen are never hopeless. As long as there's life, there's hope. Will defend the Indies until the death."

Aneta also reported that none of the armed forces had left the Indies for Australia—this apparently excepting "a fair number" of naval personnel said by Van Mook to have escaped with the intention of carrying on the fight elsewhere.

Bandoeng Loss Confirmed. The lieutenant governor-general, who like his associates left his wife and family in the Indies, offered little hope of any prolonged continued stand on Java and it was he who confirmed the loss of Bandoeng.

But, brushing away the heavy-heartedness of a terrible defeat, he declared challengingly:

"We are here to carry on the fight and not to sit and mope. There is no use hiding the fact that there is bitterness in some places in Java," he went on, "but our people understand the difficulties of getting things moved."

"American ships and Australian troops did their best and there is no doubt about their quality, but it was a case of too little and too late."

He estimated the Japanese forces in Java at eight divisions—from 120,000 to 160,000 men—"many more than we had."

Tokyo's claims to the capture of 98,000 Allied troops would, if confirmed, represent a greater loss in men even than in the Singapore disaster.

New Mayor Must Keep Committees

No matter who serves as mayor of Atlanta after Mayor LeCraw goes to the Army, the new chief executive will inherit the personnel of all LeCraw's committees intact and can not change the membership until council reorganizes next January 4, City Attorney Jack C. Savage said yesterday.

Savage said that under the charter, council is reorganized for an entire year on the first Monday of each January, and that committee appointments once made may not be changed during the year except by resignation or vacancies from other causes. The mayor, however, would have a right to make such appointments as he saw fit to fill vacancies.

LeCraw has been ordered into service effective March 14, and will report as directed. He made his 1943 committee assignments on January 5.

Two Members of Family Are Injured at Cordele

CORDELE, Ga., March 9.—Accidents befell two members of the Sanders family, residing on Ninth avenue, within 24 hours recently. Mrs. Fannie Bell Sanders suffered a fractured leg and she is now confined to her bed with the injury.

The same day, John Ellis Sanders, sustained a fractured collarbone in a fall from his bicycle.

$16,000 Voted For Civilian Defense Here

$50,000 More Needed for Raid Shelters, White Declares.

City council yesterday authorized expenditures of $16,000 for civilian defense and heard Councilman John A. White, finance committee chairman, warn that at least $50,000 more must be made available for local air raid shelters.

Of the $16,000 authorized, as much as $10,000 will be utilized in purchase of an air-raid alarm system and $6,000 for buying 500 cots, sheets and blankets for opening an emergency hospital unit at the municipal auditorium to care for casualties in the event of bombing raids on the city and its environs.

The Municipal Defense Council was instructed to continue its experiments with air raid alarm systems, to center on a standard and to buy it.

James E. Jackson, chairman of the Defense Council, filed with council a report of the organization's activities. It recommended a central command for the entire Atlanta area and said that the council already has requested 302,000 gas masks and 9,000 steel helmets for use inside the city. Funds for the purchase of the materials asked would come from the $100,000,000 defense fund voted for civilian defense activities by congress.

The report also told of training methods used in preparing 25,000 volunteers for defense service. It pointed out that the training system is inadequate, and while admitting that training probably is not intensive enough, it stressed that the local council is following recommendations and the pattern prepared by the federal Office of Civilian Defense. It said additional training will be offered as soon as all minimum requirements of OGD are met.

Mayor Spurns Suggestion He Resign Army

LeCraw Says He Will Report for Duty as Ordered.

Mayor LeCraw yesterday spurned a proposal by Major General E. S. Adams, adjutant general of the United States Army, that the mayor resign his Army commission, and announced he would report for duty March 14 as previously ordered by Adams.

In a telegram to LeCraw, Adams pointed out that the Georgia Governor had appealed for a 90-day deferment in service. The message gave no indication that such would be allowed unless the mayor resigned his federal recognition, which he said he will not do.

LeCraw's friends yesterday predicted freely that he would offer his resignation at next Monday's regular session of council.

The council yesterday voted to amend a council ordinance providing a two-weeks' pay increment to all employees of the city entering the service to include officials, department heads and any and all those connected with the city. Thus when LeCraw leaves, he will be entitled to receive half a month's pay if the amendment passes, as did others who left the city service for duty in defense units.

LeCraw, Blair Confer on Water

Mayor LeCraw probably will call a special meeting of city council the latter part of the week to attempt to work out details of supplying water to the Bell bomber plant and possibly to Marietta.

Yesterday he conferred informally with Mayor L. H. (Rip) Blair, of Marietta, and Representative James Carmichael, of Cobb county, about the proposal to sell water to Marietta, but said no definite conclusion could be reached until after federal officials and the city agree on the amount of water needed and the method used to supply it. He said federal representatives probably will return from Washington conferences about the middle of the week and that council may then be convened.

HIGH HEELS? SURE.—Miss Betty Smith wore high heels yesterday. She had a story about them and the military boys. Said she, soldiers want their dates to wear high heels. "Let 'em wear them. If they topple over, we'll catch 'em." But Miss Smith didn't want a high-heel photograph. Seems she wore them and toppled over when there wasn't anyone to catch her. (Slight automobile accident.)

Soldiers Want High Heels on Their Dates

'If They Topple, We'll Catch 'Em,' They Say.

Meet any soldier on the street. Ask him if he wants his girl to wear high heels on dates. Nine chances out of 10 his reply will be: "Sure, let them wear high heels. If they topple over, we'll catch 'em."

This business of wearing olive drab or navy blue is swell for men. They don't mind uniforms. But they want their dates diked out in feminine dresses, bright colors, floppy hats, and, above all—high heels.

Those boys who are away from home want to come back and find their girls "the way they looked in peacetime."

So throw away your business suits, girls, your browns and blues and blacks, and pull out the high heels and feminine things that the boys want you to wear.

Views On Clothes. Miss Betty Smith, of New York, who travels the country weighing in business girls' views on clothes for her magazine, Glamour, told this new trend in Atlanta yesterday.

Suits take a definite stride this spring—particularly gabardines, she said. But, as a rule, the career girls are selecting brighter colors for office use and they won't dare step out on a date without bright splashes of spring watermelon pink or brilliant greens and yellows.

The working girls, of which the United States has more than 40 million, prefer jacket dresses because they are tailored for the office and may be worn without the jacket for dinner after-office hours. Of the wardrobes selected by these girls, more than 60 per cent are dominated by jacket dresses. Average price is $15.25.

Buy Slacks. Most salaried girls spend all their pay checks for clothes. Some buy defense stamps through their employer. Others buy additional ones out of cafeteria or lunch money.

The double-duty, triple-duty dresses have proved most popular with girls who have to be keen on their toes by 8:30 each morning. They select one dress, several sets of accessories and the boss doesn't see how in the world "Miss Jones" can afford so many costumes with her $20 a week.

FREAK POTATO. TOCCOA, Ga., March 9.—A freak potato with kernels inside was found by Miss Louise Mize, who lives in the Bold Springs community, near Toccoa, last week. She bought the Irish potatoes at a local grocery store and upon cooking them found several formations imbedded inside one potato.

Daniels Ordered To Active Duty

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP) The Navy announced today that Captain Josephus Daniels Jr., whose father was secretary of Navy during World War I, had been ordered to active duty in the Marine Corps.

Daniels' name was included in a list of 19 Marine reserve officers called for service. He will report to Marine barracks at Parris Island, South Carolina, on March 11. He is publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer.

Others in the list included Captain Marton Nachman, Augusta, Georgia.

Augusta Mother Has 6 Sons in Army

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS) The emblem of Honor Association, an organization which honors war mothers, disclosed last night that 191 American mothers have sent four or more sons into the nation's armed services, and that seven of these mothers have as many as six sons fighting for their country.

In all, a survey by the association showed, there were 198 families in the United States on March 1 who had four or more members of the family in the armed forces—including an Iowa woman who had seven brothers and her father in the Navy.

The mothers with six sons in the fighting services included Mrs. D. L. Key, of Augusta, Ga.

So far some 12 per cent of the state's white male teachers have been inducted into the armed forces, but Allman predicted the total would approximate at least 25 per cent by the end of the present school year.

In the last war the problem was much less acute because qualifications required of teachers were not so high. Then no college—or even high school—training was necessary in many schools, while now a teacher must have completed at least two years of college.

Scorched Earth Policy in Far East Is Called a Flop

By PAT ROBINSON.

MELBOURNE, March 9.—(INS)—Contrary to the wide impression abroad that Japanese victories here and there have been of a pyrrhic nature, military men with whom this correspondent has talked laugh at published stories of successful scorched earth operations at certain places.

Thus far, they say, the scorched earth program in the southwest Pacific has not been as effective as pictured due largely to the preponderance of the enemy's attacking forces which has forced the defenders to great haste in their efforts to destroy things of value in the invader's path.

Talked with many oil men who have escaped from certain islands overrun by the foe. They said they had too little time to demolish much and they expressed the belief that the Japs are already able to use captured oil wells.

(Editor's Note: The Japanese claimed they had found 70 per cent of the south Sumatra petroleum installations intact. Dutch sources, however, have disputed this claim, but have not given any exact estimate of the percentage of scorched earth destruction of the wells.)

The fact is, these men said, that the Japs have had no sustained opposition anywhere, except by General Douglas MacArthur in Bataan, because they have always had overwhelming numerical superiority in all respects.

They have had such air superiority, I was told, that they could even take their own time in bombing raids in destroying only so much they considered necessary while sparing whatever they intended to use later on.

One widely experienced flyer, who fought the Japanese in many campaigns in the three months since the war in the Pacific broke out, told me that the Japs could have been stopped anywhere if they had been opposed by 1,000 fighter planes and that that number can still beat them.

The best military opinion is that the Japs cannot afford to ignore Australia on their southern flank because if they do it will be only a question of time until they get chased back to Tokyo by a terrific offensive that is sure to come.

bat vessels the Japanese now are reported to have lost 52 sunk or damaged.

Shortly after issuing its communiqué on submarine actions, the Navy issued for the Marine Corps an account of the sinking of a Japanese cruiser December 11 and a submarine December 12 by Marine aviators at Wake Island before that tiny outpost fell to the enemy.

Major Henry T. Elrod, of Thomasville, Ga., and Captain Frank Cunningham Tharin, of Washington, D. C., were credited with sinking the cruiser while Second Lieutenant David Donald Kleiwer, of Wheaton, Ill., got the submarine. All three men are now presumed prisoners of the Japanese.

Cruiser Sinks. Elrod and Tharin hit the cruiser with eight 100-pound bombs. It sank. They then badly damaged another ship which left the area trailing smoke.

Kleiwer sighted the submarine while on a late reconnaissance patrol about 10 miles south of Wake. He went into a dive, turning his 50-caliber machineguns on the vessel. As he pulled out he loosed two 100-pound bombs.

"His bombs scored and the submarine sank immediately," the Marine Corps reported.

"Flying Grumman single-seated fighters," the announcement said, "Major Elrod and Captain Tharin, and two other pilots participated in the defense of Wake when a fleet of enemy cruisers, destroyers, gunboats and transports attacked at dawn on December 11. The four pilots were members of Major Paul A. Putnam's squadron that was reduced to a strength of but four planes in the first Japanese attack.

Dropped 20 Bombs. "The other two pilots, whose names were not included in the report, badly damaged another ship, which was seen to be trailing smoke as it left the area of operations. Altogether, the Marine pilots dropped 20 bombs and fired a total of 20,000 50-caliber machinegun ammunition into the Japanese ships."

Major Elrod was born September 25, 1905, in Turner county, Ga. He enlisted in the Marine Corps in December, 1927, and was appointed second lieutenant in February, 1931. He attended the University of Georgia and Vanderbilt University prior to enlistment in the Marines.

He won his wings in February, 1935, and was sent to the Hawaiian area in January, 1941.

He arrived at Wake a short time before the outbreak of hostilities. Major Elrod's wife, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Elrod, has been living in Hawaii, and his sister, Mrs. William T. Ramsey, lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

Price Regulation To Be Discussed

British Evacuating Rangoon

The British command's defense of Rangoon and the rest of southern Burma has been a series of withdrawals in the face of heavy odds. The arrival of a British armored force served to prolong the battle near the defensible vital Sittang river, but here the enemy succeeded in establishing a bridgehead near the river's mouth after 10 days of severe fighting and eventually brought antitank guns to meet the British tank sorties.

Halts Supplies.

The fall of Rangoon means an interruption in the shipment of United Nations war supplies and fuel to China. Engineers are already at work, however, arranging to supply Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies through India and whatever other channels are feasible.

Eleven miles below Rangoon, the Syrian refineries had produced hundreds of thousands of gallons of gasoline to keep Burma Road traffic humming and China's planes and motor vehicles running. A pipeline brought crude oil to Syria from the Irrawaddy oil fields 300 miles away. The oil fields now are within striking distance of Japanese troops.

Industries Wrecked. A British Army communiqué said all industrial objectives had been demolished before Rangoon was evacuated. All dock installations, oil refineries and machinery

General Peyton Asserts He Will Stand by Unit

Defense Head To Assume Responsibilities for Any Defects.

Brigadier General E. G. Peyton yesterday defended the organization of civilian defense in Atlanta, which he commands, and assumed responsibility for any alleged defects in it.

In a letter to Director James M. Landis, of the Office of Civilian Defense, he described what he had done to protect Atlanta from air raids.

"The commander has organized," he wrote, "has retained, or is training his staff. His Army consists of eight zones, over which was placed an organizer and director, assisted by civilian assistants and staff. The zones contain a variable number of precincts, each controlled and organized by a warden and his assistants. The precincts contain a variable number of sectors, each controlled and organized by a warden and his assistants."

"The Atlanta Civilian Defense organization is absolutely non-political in its scope and operation. It is not serving nor dominated by the ins, the outs, or any other political subdivision."

"Of course, it is a blow to the morale of the ever-increasing number of unselfish, patriotic citizens who have attached themselves to the chain of command to have their sincere efforts described as floundering, in headlines bigger than those describing the fall of Singapore. Of course, it is likewise thoroughly and universally understood that the manuals prescribe only a minimum of hours of instruction and of knowledge gained, but drill and more drill, training and more training will broaden this knowledge. The progress already made has been astoundingly rapid."

Bomb Thunder Marks Spring RAF Offensive

British Fliers Continue To Blast Factories Aiding Hitler.

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)—The earth-shaking thunder of bombs and answering gunfire across the Strait of Dover testified tonight that the RAF's own spring offensive was rolling on against German war production and offensive shipping concentrations in occupied France.

Explosions great enough to shake buildings on the south coast of England sounded across the channel from the directions of Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez and big concentrations of searchlights played on the British raiders from the French coast.

Flashes of gunfire were seen almost constantly over the low banks of mist on the channel soon after the RAF bombers flew over. Thus the brisk pace was kept up against coastal objectives and factories tuning up Hitler's war machine for the spring after heavy weekend raids from the Ruhr valley to northern France and suburban Paris.

Keeping up the assaults started by a daylight attack on the Paris region yesterday and the sprawling Krupp works at Essen last night, RAF bombers winged over northern France today and blasted a big power and industrial plant at Mazingarbe, near Bethune.

which could not be moved here destroyed. The RAF reported that smoke rose 15,000 feet from the Rangoon fires.

Light enemy patrols were reported active tonight in the region of Taunggyan, a village 21 miles from Rangoon at the point where the Burma Road branches into two routes toward Mandalay, one via Pegu, the other through Prome.

American drillers and engineers employed by the British oil interests said the Irrawaddy oil fields could be so thoroughly destroyed in a few hours that the Japanese could not repair them for five years.

In Native Dress.

"We are not leaving until the job is done," they said.

Japanese patrols closing in on Rangoon wore native clothing, making it difficult to detect them among the natives. It was reported here, Japanese agents, it was said, were responsible for a good many of the attacks made by Burmese natives on Europeans evacuating Rangoon along the western branch of the Burma Road.

The Dacoits, jungle murder gangs, stretched steel cables across the road, damaging many cars driving at high speed during the night. Snipers were active when cars not in convoy approached.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—Infuriated policemen today searched the city for a veteran crime instructor who escaped in textbook style.

Benjamin Rockower, 50, convicted as a fourth offender and facing a 15-year term, was said by police to have conducted a crime school where he instructed willing youngsters in the fine art of burglary. Their hauls were worth $20,000 to him and he paid the youths $10 a job.

Rockower said he wanted to show police a valuable clue to another crime in his home. Once there he insisted that two patrolmen accompany him up a ladder to the roof. Rockower went first. At the top, he shook the ladder, knocking off the two officers, and then slammed a trapdoor on them and raced over rooftops to freedom.

Two Men Are Held; Suspected of Murder

Two white men were being held at police headquarters last night on charges of suspicion of murder after the fatal stabbing Saturday afternoon of Clifford Henderson, 32, Negro, in an Ivy street garage.

The men, booked on the police docket as Edward A. Bridges, 22, and Jack Ferry, 21, both of an Angier avenue address, admitted to City Detectives J. M. Austin and C. L. Taylor they stabbed the Negro, but said it was in self-defense, the detectives reported. The suspects told the detectives that Henderson owed them a small amount of money and that Henderson attacked them with a wrench when they went to collect.

Retail Price of Food Continue To Advance

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—The Labor Department reported today that food retail prices continued to advance during the last half of February, except for a few seasonal declines.

On the basis of surveys in 19 cities, pork chops increased about 3 cents a pound; orange prices rose about 8 per cent and canned tomatoes about 4 per cent. The department noted, however, that a few items decreased, cabbage dropping about 9 per cent, and eggs about 2 cents a dozen. "Small increases" were reported for wheat flour, roast chuck and sliced bacon.

Organize for War

There is a growing belief that some widespread reorganization both in administrative and operative divisions of the war effort will be necessary in the near future both for the United States and Britain.

Britain, as a matter of fact, already has such reorganization under way. Churchill has reshuffled his cabinet and more changes may be coming. The British have made public definite plans to reactivate the army by advancing younger men to positions of high command.

President Roosevelt will probably have to make some changes in his own cabinet before the war has gone much further. Many friendly critics have frequently declared the President undertakes to hold too much responsibility, particularly as to detail, in his own hands. His principal adviser, Harry Hopkins, is admittedly an invalid and it is said his physical disability has a tendency to prevent him from making quick decisions.

Secretaries Knox and Stimson have done splendid work in the war secretariats of Navy and Army, but both are far from young and it may be desirable, when the war situation intensifies, to put younger men and more vigorous men in these posts of administrative command.

Of course, the secretary of labor, Madam Perkins, should have been removed long ago. It is generally conceded that one of the chief weaknesses of the administration is the lack of a strong man in this important post. It is rumored that Secretary Perkins has already submitted her resignation, but no announcement of its acceptance, or of her successor, has yet come from the White House.

It would appear essential, in such a war as this, that the President choose a war cabinet composed of men in their prime, vigorous, both physically and mentally. That Roosevelt will have to reorganize his cabinet along this line, appears inevitable eventually. And the public feeling is that the sooner it is done the better, that the quicker the nation strips for action the earlier the war will be over.

In so far as actual fighting of the war is concerned, the time is fast approaching when strategy will have to change from the defensive to the offensive. Also there will have to be a new and more perfect co-ordination of the three great combat branches, the land, the sea and the air. And it is quite within the range of possibility that new forms and designs in weapons will have to be produced before the war is finally won.

As for the average man, it might be his part to contribute to the changes which must be made, by dropping the word "defense" from his war vocabulary and substituting therefor its antonym, "offense" or the more inspiring word, "Victory!"

Russia, Beware!

Japan has sent a special envoy to Russia, to discuss conditions for the continuance of technical peace between those two nations.

The Russian envoy to Tokyo is in Moscow for consultation and there are widespread rumors he will not return to his post. The rumors do not say whether any successor will be appointed by the Soviet government or not.

The pattern looks ominously like that drawn by Japanese diplomacy in the days immediately preceding the attack on Pearl Harbor. Tokyo had sent a special envoy to Washington to talk peace between the United States and Japan.

Even as that envoy talked in saccharine politeness with our officials, the Japanese fleet that attacked Pearl Harbor was on the ocean, started upon its treacherous mission.

Josef Stalin is a man hard to deceive. It is not likely he needs any warning as to the fundamental treachery of the Japanese mind and its diplomatic representatives.

However, when a special Japanese envoy goes to Moscow to talk peace—that is the time for the Soviet to strengthen itself against any possible Japanese attack.

A Happy Choice!

Elfred S. Papy, a most able but modest Atlanta businessman, has courageously agreed to take over the duties of executive co-ordinator of all Civilian Defense in the fifth congressional district.

Mr. Papy took the job with no illusions. He knows it is difficult. He knows the many snarls which will confront him. He knows there will be others to come.

His acceptance of the job is a splendid example of the best type of citizenship. The job will mean considerable sacrifice.

He merits the whole-hearted co-operation of every citizen in the district. It is to be hoped that all the factions will disarm themselves and enter into this long-needed effort to co-ordinate Civilian Defense in this district.

After all, Elfred Papy is trying to help all of us be ready to protect ourselves if war should come from the sky in the form of enemy bombers.

It would be the height of stupidity not to lend him every assistance. His only source of power is public opinion. We cannot fail to give it to him, generously, wholeheartedly.

Elfred Papy is not new to serving as a citizen. It is doubtful if any one man has done more to build up the state of Georgia as a livestock state. He has given generously of his ability in many civic enterprises. He has been a citizen, for all the long years he has been in Georgia, in the truest sense of the word.

The Constitution is happy to commend him to the citizens of this district; to pledge him its own support, to ask that all of us place our confidence in him and assist him in doing the job by obeying his orders loyally and by accepting his decisions cheerfully.

—GIVE FOR VICTORY!—

Decisive Field of Battle

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American flying ace of the first World War, recently told cadets at the United States Naval Reserve Aviation Base that the victory in this new war will be won by the side which has superiority in the air.

It has been more and more evident, as this new war progressed, that the air forces are the decisive factor. On battlefield after battlefield, in one arena of war after another, control of the air has meant victory. The gains of the Axis, both in Europe and in the Pacific have been primarily due to air superiority which they have seized at the outset and have been able to maintain.

It is part of the technique of modern attack to first destroy the enemy's air fields and thus cripple his air arm. Once this is done, it is comparatively easy to overwhelm the ground forces, no matter how brave they may be.

Ground forces are, of course, necessary. The air arm can clear the enemy from position, but it still takes the infantry to hold that position after it is won. It is, though, through proper co-ordination and perfect timing between all arms of the service—Army, Navy and Air Force—that victories are won.

Even then, though, it is the strength of the air attack and defense that is the deciding factor.

This being so, the importance of the United States air program is clear. We must, if we would win the war, build so many planes, train so many pilots and crews to operate them, that all our foes combined shall be hopelessly outclassed in the warfare of the clouds. Only thus can we win the victory.

The final combat of this war will be won in the air. After that, what happens on the ground or on the waters will be, in actuality, mere "mopping up" after the victory of the men of the air.

Georgia Editors Say:

ANOTHER KIND OF HERO

(From The Towns County Herald.)

"Don't bother me; I'm too busy."

That's what an employee in one American factory said to a visitor who wanted to congratulate him on the record he had made for speed and accurate work. He was too busy for praise—too busy helping to turn out the war material that our country so urgently needs.

Throughout American today there are plenty of others like him—men and women who with their work are helping the United Nations to make a gallant stand for liberty in every part of the world. Many of them have perfected new techniques that speed up war production. Many others have developed ways of saving vital materials, ways of using substitutes. All of them are giving their knowledge and their skill to Uncle Sam's main job of winning the war.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WHERE NEXT? WASHINGTON, March 9.—Now that Java has apparently been the question uppermost in the minds of military leaders is where and how Japan is likely to strike next?

No one outside the Axis high command is able to say with any degree of certainty. Only one thing seems reasonably obvious. It is hardly likely that she will sit back and assume a defensive position, content to rest on the victories thus far achieved. The whole pattern of Axis hopes calls for further quick action. Once they surrender the initiative and allow time for our huge production program to bear full fruit, the balance of power is definitely shifted, the war lost to them.

Speculation in informed military circles centers on one of two major moves after a brief lull to give the Japanese time for reorganizing their forces. It may be directed westward into India, or northward into Siberia. Attacks on Alaska and our bases in the Aleutian island chain might be collateral to the Siberian move.

While the possibility of a continued movement southward against Australia is not to be overlooked, most military observers discount this at the moment. Because of the vast area involved and the concentration of American and British imperial forces there, the prize is not believed to be worth the risk of trying to take it. On the other side of the score, however, is the fact that, with the loss of Java, Singapore and the Philippines, Australia now constitutes the last naval base foothold of the United Nations in the far Pacific.

Nevertheless, the best available opinion at the moment is that the Japs will bypass Australia for bigger game.

TO SQUEEZE RUSSIA Purpose of the Siberian attack would be to take the pressure off the Russian European front while the Germans launched their anticipated drive through the Near East, with the ultimate object of forming a junction with the Japanese in India. A variation of the same strategic move would be to involve Russia in a pincers operation, whereby she would be forced to stand off attack on two sides.

But either move on the part of the Japs—into India or Siberia—would be equally disastrous to the United Nations if successful. Should an Axis junction be formed in India, the Suez Canal would be closed, the Mediterranean would come under Axis domination, Turkey would be flanked out of the war, and the main source of Russian supplies through the Indian ocean would be blocked off.

After that the Japanese move into Siberia would come as a logical sequence. The real Axis effort to knock the Russians out of the war would then come from two directions.

What we are doing to meet the threatened situation is, of course, a military secret of the highest order known only to the Allied command. It is only possible to speculate on the meaning of segments of official information that have come out from time to time regarding the movement of American and British convoys to the Far East.

THAT LONDON STORY There was the story out of London last week, for example, of a vast American convoy in far Pacific waters. We may assume from this and related incidents touching on our Pacific troop movements that a large striking force is being assembled in Australia and New Zealand. Elimination of Java, Singapore and the Philippines from the Allied war picture would place the other place for them to be concentrated. They must be there in goodly numbers already.

What we are planning to do with them remains to be seen. The Dutch military commander at Java made some announcement the other day indicating that an Allied blow was about to be struck in the region. During the earlier siege of Singapore other reports were current that we and the British might launch a counter-attack in the Malayan Peninsula. All of this should mean something. Certainly we are planning to take the offensive as soon as our forces develop sufficient strength.

LESSENER TENSION We were not able to muster this strength in time to offer material aid to the defense of Singapore and Java. It takes six or eight weeks to get a convoy out there. The evidence is now that convoys have arrived. One of the best signs is the lessened tension in Australia. A few weeks ago hysterical plans were coming for American help out there. They were pleading for us to send relief, demanding that the British return Australian units previously sent to the European and African battle sectors. The fact that the pleas have stopped explains a lot.

Perhaps the promised Allied offensive action in the Pacific will be aimed to meet the next Japanese move. We can only wait and see what form it takes.

How We Can Help To Win.

More from the Harvard group for Defense of America. Continuing the column of Monday.

Dealing with the role that civilians must play in this struggle for freedom and tyranny, the group points out:

"More than any other of the past, this is a civilians' war. Total mobilization, indispensable for victory, makes every individual a vital part of the national effort. Every individual thus bears a responsibility for his share in the war; and how he views that task will be an important factor in the marshaling of our resources."

"Where Do We Go From Here?"

Asking that question, the Group stresses the importance of understanding, by the average man and woman, of the hard facts, then to accept certain objectives for ourselves, to be followed until the victory is won. We need to understand, it is declared, "that this is a world-wide death struggle in which the common man's hope for the future is pitted against the old tyrannies."

Then, for some of the objectives we must constantly hold before us, as individuals, the following list is given:

"1. We need a steady and indomitable purpose to win the war at all costs and however long it may last. We need to subordinate every activity to that purpose; to make it, rather than criticism or complaint, our dominant mood; and to accept it as the personal responsibility of every one of us."

"2. We need an esprit de corps, the sense of a common will which we must attain by speeding the effective mobilization, training, and organization of the entire nation."

"3. We need unwavering loyalty to our duly constituted authorities, unshaken by reverses and invulnerable to enemy propaganda."

"4. We need the same kind of loyalty to our Allies, whatever setbacks they may suffer. Up to now they have made greater sacrifices than we have for our common cause."

"5. We need an understanding of the war, its wide extent, its background, its implications for the future."

"Now is the time for steadiness."

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—As a man with an in-born instinct for riding a bicycle without even touching the handlebars, it seems fitting and proper that I should make an investigation of the bicycle situation.

That I have just done, and I wish to report to the nation that the bicycle situation is bad. In fact, so bad that there is almost no situation or bicycle either.

My problems haven't covered other parts of the country, but in Los Angeles it is almost impossible to buy a bicycle. Sears-Roebuck has a few left, which will doubtless be gone before this appears in print. If you're lucky, you might just happen onto one at some small store. But as a general rule you can't buy a new bike in Los Angeles today.

Shops that rebuild bicycles are running two weeks and longer behind on rebuilds, and they won't even take your name and address in regard to a brand-new one.

I've had a long bicycle gabfest with Charles Mullen, who runs the Atlas Cycle Company on East Sixth street, here. Mr. Mullen has seen as many as 28 bicycles leave his shop in one day, and his yearly sales are more than 600.

Can't Get In the first six weeks of this year he sold 116 bicycles, and could have sold dozens more. But he has even stopped taking orders now, for frankly he doesn't know when he can get any more bicycles.

With this new wartime demand for bikes, you'd think being in the bicycle business would be a very nice little thing. And it would be, if you could get the bicycles to sell. But since you can't, it's a very bad business to be in.

Bicycles are soon to go on a quota basis. Three of the nation's 11 factories have already shut down completely. Others are curtailed. Even spare parts are hard to get now.

Before long production will start on the new "Victory" bicycle. All bike manufacturing will be limited to this one model, for the duration. I couldn't find out whether it would be made in several factories, or turned over to just one factory while all the others were converted to direct war production of something else.

At any rate, the new Victory bicycle is due out in April. It will not have balloon tires. Its tires and wheels will be smaller than regulation. There will be no chain-guards on the new Victory, no chrome-plating, no kick-stands, no drop-falls, whatever. Even the hand-grip grips will be made of wood.

Even Then Not Enough The price of the Victory hasn't been set yet, but it may be around $40. There won't be enough of these to supply the demand, for dealers are to be limited to 40 per cent of what they sold last year.

And that is what will cause many bicycle shops to go out of business—for even a big shop like Mr. Mullen's cannot exist on 40 per cent of last year's business.

However, outside of the dealers themselves, the diminishment in bicycle shops probably won't hurt anybody much. Because bicycle mechanics are such a super-breed (according to Mr. Mullen) that they can get new jobs immediately.

Mr. Mullen says a real bicycle mechanic has to know 10 times as much as an auto mechanic. He says that in 20 years in the business he has found only three really good mechanics—and two of them have now gone to defense jobs.

Replacing Autos Practically all of Mr. Mullen's sales since the first of the year were to people who figured on laying up their cars and riding to work. He sold out to a dentist who has blocked up his auto and rides into the city every day from Whittier—some 15 miles. One-fifth of his sales were to women.

I have a friend on the Daily News here who has just managed to get hold of a bicycle, and has started riding to work. He has to come 11 miles, and not being very bicycle-wise he allowed himself two hours for the trip on the first morning. He made it in an hour, and arrived at work one hour early, long before daylight.

His rider tells me that cycling has convinced him beyond doubt of one thing—and that is that women drivers don't think as fast as men. He says that out on the highway he can pick up every woman driver a quarter of a mile away just by her reactions at meeting a bicycle. (My friend rides the left-hand side of the road, like a pedestrian.)

The new army of bicycle riders has created a new business in Los Angeles—the parking of bicycles. It's a minor source of income, but is likely to grow fast. One downtown garage is parking bikes at $1 a month.

That's all I know about bicycles. Anybody want to ride on my handlebars?

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

BACK TO NORMALCY Java is overrun and from a base 400 miles from Australia, the Japanese, operating on a plan tested and developed across a 10-year span of time, begins raids on Australia and await our convoys filled with men and materials.

A year before we are ready for an offense, the full force of an enemy which has devoted all its energies to war plans for a generation and more, strike us in vital spots. Immense wealth of rubber, oil and metals give the enemy as much raw wealth as it needs.

You may see all this and, out of the depths of concern and grim reality, manage a rueful smile.

There still are some who think, fretfully, of getting back to normalcy . . . as if there had ever been, or ever would be, "normalcy." Warren Harding was swept into office by the phrase:

"Back to normalcy!"

A nation sick of a war, which it never really began to feel, weary of the small pinches which it had brought; tired of war legislation, hugged that phrase to its breast—

"Back to normalcy!"

It was wonderful. The nostalgic yearning, the atavistic feel for security and comfort and the escape from reality—back to normalcy!

That curious phrase died with the election. The hunt for normalcy led us to a surrealism of corruption, of futility in government, of government for, of and by special privilege.

It led us to that dry, garrulous little man who talked so much about everything which meant nothing, and so little about important things (because he knew nothing about them), that the correspondents at Washington called him "Silent Cal" and "Cautious Cal." For so silent a man it is odd his state papers reveal he said more words than any other President and that no one remembers any of them save a joke or so that newspapermen put in his mouth.

It led us to the dance of the millions and to holding companies piled on holding companies; to paper profits; to millionaires made in minutes.

It led to Herbert Hoover and another phrase—"Prosperity is just around the corner."

It led to Roosevelt and a revolution for the people. The nation's great men came to him and pleaded that he do something. In the first 30 days Franklin D. Roosevelt earned the everlasting gratitude of this nation, and the world, had he done nothing else at all. It led us on to today.

SO, GRIN AND BEAR IT I put this down merely to say there never has been any normalcy.

There never will be any. We are going on. Out of the travail of this war—if we win it—will come a long, hard period of adjustment. And progress.

If we lose it— It is well to remember this is the first total war the nation has ever known. It is the first total war the world has ever known. The issue is not confused. It is plain and simple—

Shall we become the slave nation of an alien race and races, living as a producer of raw materials and machines to keep the alien races strong and in power?

Or, shall we put down our foolish prejudices of politics and fight out this long, hard war in which our men must die on far-flung battlefields?

And live there, too— To come back to the long, hard period of adjustment and help do that job.

There isn't ever going to be any normalcy. Not, at least, as we interpret the word.

We'll have to develop a fatalistic attitude and make up our minds that we will have to grin and bear it, take the bitter and the sweet, and see what happens.

IN THE BEGINNING

In the beginning the immigrants came to this raw, new country and found themselves a place. Or didn't. Those that found it fought Indians, hunger, wars, and the dangers of the frontiers.

There was no normalcy. The fierce tides of the Civil War ran strongly for many years before the storm of war broke.

There was no normalcy in that war of Americans against Americans.

There was no normalcy in the south, where waste and devastation was left, plus a corrupt and ruthless military dictatorship. There was no normalcy left in the east, where a great boom grew, mushrooming out of victory and the deliberate subjugation of the economies of the south.

Grown men, strong men, sit around talking and think of their father's days and their own childhood as being peaceful, normal days. They cannot remember their fathers were yearning for a never-known "normalcy" of their own dream-like childhood.

There never will be any. And it looks as if there will be a little less of something that never really existed than there ever was before.

The only thing anyone can recommend is this— Do your best—and develop a fatalistic philosophy. You can't do anything about it except to do your duty, to obey orders and do whatever job you have to do as best you can.

The Toughest Veterans Can't Win

If the General Is Afraid

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The people of America are neither foolish nor asleep. They know that defeat would leave Hitler and Japan in control of the world, while our nation, disarmed and helpless, would live at the mercy of its conquerors.

They know our only hope is to win. They are determined to win, cost what it may.

If they seem apathetic, it is because they know nothing to do except wait for some leader to organize and use them. They wait in ever increasing anxiety; and if they could speak with one voice, they would say to their leaders: "In God's name and in humanity's name, make yourselves hard. This war is a foul, bloody and horrible business, and soft men cannot win it. Quit thinking in terms of defense and think only of offense. We cannot win except by a quick, constant, daring and merciless offensive. We cannot win if we have soft leaders who are afraid to hurt feelings or offend friends. If you cannot be tough, in mercy's name quit and make way for leaders who are hard enough to make war. We must judge all policies and activities by one hard rule. If the homes of the rich are needed for war work, commandeer them without delay. If Japs in Hawaii and on the coast can injure us, intern the last one immediately, no matter what businesses are disrupted. If anything proposed by labor or employers would interfere with war work, prevent it with force if necessary. If the preserving of somebody's 'civil rights' would expose us to danger, ignore such 'rights' till the war is over. Do everything that is necessary to win the war, and stop everything that could interfere with winning, no matter who is hurt or what the cost.

These things are absolutely vital, for they mean life or death. And we cannot make tough war unless our leaders are tough. The soft-headed, timid, run-thinking, sweetly-stupid and considerate face-savers must be replaced by steel-hard men who will make us the toughest and most merciless war machine in history, and do it with lightning speed.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"I do wish Bessie would make some friends!"

Dudley Glass

Come, let us sing a song of spring, let's herald its glad coming; let's chant our lays to brighter days while winter winds are humming. Beneath the crust of ice there must be tender flowers yearning to poke their heads through leafy beds and greet the sun's returning.

Far in the hills the rippling wills begin their seaward travel; meet up with brooks in wooded nooks and flow through sand and gravel where hungry bass lurk in the grass or flash like silver arrows through growing rush or lifeless brush or swim the rocky narrows.

The birds and bees, the shrubs and trees, the lambs which lightly gambol, the calves and goats and billy goats that in the pastures ramble, have felt the urge to make a spurge and shed their winter garments and life is sweet and all's complete with nature and the vermints.

The poet Pope expressed the hope that men would pattern after old Nature's ways and fill their days with happiness and laughter but he is laid beneath the shade, released from his diseases, so let us hope that Mr. Pope finds "every prospect pleases" . . . And wind and rain will come again to make the pastures greener but "man is vile" and all the while he's getting even meaner. They blast a dome, an orphan's home or wreck a church's steeple. . . . This world would be quite pleasant if it wasn't for the people.

Two-Handed Matches

What this world—or the smoking population, at least—needs most is a one-handed match. Yes, I know the old-fashioned wooden kitchen matches are still on the market, but they are not handy for the pocket.

The dire need was brought to my mind by observing a man in the post-office corridor who had just purchased a half-sheet of three-cent stamps, about $1.50 worth, if I guessed correctly.

He was endeavoring to light a cigar. He held the stamps in his left hand, by a corner of the sheet, and in the same hand a book of paper matches. With his right hand he struck the match against the abrasive on the book—and the sheet of stamps went up in smoke. He recovered a few by stamping on the flames, but the loss was at least 75 per cent.

As for me, I can get along with book matches except when driving a car. I've never owned a car whose cigar-lighter worked after the first three months. And to light a cigarette with a paper match necessitates taking both hands off the steering wheel, which is not approved by the National Safety Council. That is where the old wooden kitchen match comes in handy. You can strike it on your shoe sole and still keep one hand on the wheel and both eyes on the road.

A one-armed man, I should think, would not be fond of two-handed matches. But one-armed men are resourceful. In a bank a few days ago I observed one trying to extract a deposit slip from a machine on a marble counter. He pressed the button and the slip bobbed up like a jack-in-the-box. He let go the button and the slip dropped back into its vault. He tried again, with the same result.

I was just going to his assistance when he proved he needed none. He held down the button, the deposit slip appeared, and he reached over and grabbed it—with his teeth.

THANKS FOR EDITORIAL ON "NEED FOR THRIFT"

Editor, Constitution: Let me thank you for your splendid and timely editorial entitled "The Need for Thrift" in Sunday Morning's Constitution.

The American people are befuddled and rightly so. When one cabinet member tells you there were no planes over Los Angeles and another tells you that the planes over Los Angeles were "probably" commercial planes, the average man wonders what next surmise?

Times may change, living standards change, but fundamental principles go on forever, and thrift ought to be practiced by our government as well as the citizen, who, after all, pays the bill.

The wisecrack in Washington has asked for $40,000,000 to be spent in new office furniture. The "dudeen" officials accuse the average man of being complacent. The average man knows that wars are not fought with office furniture and wonders why he should wear old clothes and sacrifice while our high officials twirl in new office chairs.

Again, thanking you for your timely editorial, I am,

EDGAR GUNN.

U. S. Steamer Carodia Sunk Off Haiti Coast

Survivors of Blasted Vessel Landed in West Indies.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, March 9.—(P)—The United States steamer Carodia was reported today to have been sunk early Saturday off Mole Saint Nicholas. Twenty-two survivors, including the captain, were understood to have landed at a northwest Haitian port.

Survivors Landed From Torpedoed Ship

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent, British West Indies, March 9.—(P)—Survivors of a torpedoed ship have reached here in three lifeboats, bringing with them two dead seamen and another injured so badly he died in hospital soon after landing.

Thirty-one survivors were in the first group that arrived in two boats. The dead men and the sailor who subsequently died were in these boats. Later, another boat landed with eight more survivors. Many of the men are being treated for injuries.

Freighter's Attacker Believed Italian

NORFOLK, Va., March 9.—(P)—A torpedo from an Axis submarine which may have been Italian sunk the Brazilian freighter Arabutou off the North Carolina coast on Saturday afternoon, survivors related here today.

The 7,878-ton vessel, owned by the Lloyd National Line, carried a cargo of coal which an official of the line valued at $200,000. Third Officer Jose Lobo de Medeiros, the only one of the 54 crew members who could speak English, said he believed the undersea attacker was Italian because four men seen on the conning tower had dark skin and hair.

One man apparently was killed when the torpedo smashed into the ship's aft on the starboard side. He was asleep in his cabin. He was officially listed as missing.

Heavy Vote Cast On Peach Program

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MACON, Ga., March 9.—(P)—Between 75 and 85 per cent of the eligible commercial peach growers of Georgia cast ballots in the referendum on a federal peach marketing agreement, George Eastman, representative of the United States Department of Agriculture, who supervised the election, said today.

Final mailed votes in the referendum, which closed Saturday, were received today, throwing the total to nearly 500.

Results will be announced by the Department of Agriculture after it certifies the referendum.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE LORD'S DAY.

A group of us in our church are just now in a special study of the Book of Genesis, using as our guide to the study of this first book of the Bible a remarkable outline written by Dr. B. H. Carroll, one of the truly great American scholars. And in his discussion of the Sabbath, what it is, and what it is for, according to God's own words in Genesis 2:1-3, "The Sabbath was here before Dr. Carroll says:

sin ever mantled man's face with the flush of shame. The Sabbath antedates all arts and sciences. It was here before Enoch built a city, or Jabel stretched a tent, or Jubal invented instruments of music, or Tubal-Cain became an artificer in brass or iron. It is older than murder. Cain walked away from his altar of worship to murder his brother Abel.

Glenn George Dies in Fall Under Truck

Accident Happens at Father's Dairy Farm at Morrow.

Glenn George, 16, son of E. T. George, a part owner of Aristocrat Dairy Products Company, was killed yesterday at the Aristocrat Farm at Morrow, Ga., when run over by a truck.

According to Deputy Sheriff W. B. Brown, of Clayton county, the youth was attempting to board one of the company's trucks when his foot slipped and he fell beneath the wheels. The boy, who attended Jonesboro High school, worked at the farm after school.

In addition to his father, he is survived by his mother; a brother, Joe George; five sisters, Virginia, Carolyn, Aneta, Jean and Barbara George; his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. George, and two uncles, J. T. and B. B. George, both of Atlanta.

Funeral plans will be announced by G. P. McMullan Funeral Home at Jonesboro.

King Assumes Stark's Powers

operations. King's chief of staff as fleet commander will continue to be Rear Admiral Russell Wilson, 58.

A further reorganization, authoritative persons predicted, undoubtedly will give even greater prominence and power to naval aviation than is now possessed by the Bureau of Aeronautics. King himself qualified years ago as a naval aviator and is now one of the few high ranking officers to hold that qualification. Throughout the 1930's he was in some sort of aeronautical command.

His policy in operation of the Navy, he made clear only a few days ago, will be to develop an offensive against the enemy as early as that can be brought about with adequate forces and means while to harass and damage the foe at every opportunity.

"Do more than your best with what you've got," is his basic idea, King said in a statement issued March 2. He reported that the Navy was engaged in an "all-out" effort to establish sea and air communications.

King is known to the Navy as a strict disciplinarian who always ran a "tight" ship and now expects the same kind of quick and ready attention to duty by every officer and man in the nation's farflung fleets.

In his assignment to London, where he will assume his new duties about April 15, after taking leave until late in March, Admiral Stark will replace Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, 58, who has been special naval observer in Britain since August, 1940.

Stark's responsibilities will be more numerous than those of Ghormley, however, and it and when substantial United States naval forces begin operations in European waters, Stark will be their chief. His job was compared by Naval officers to that given Admiral William S. Sims during the first World War when he was commander in European waters. Stark, however, will not at present take over any part of the command exercised by Vice Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll as commander of the Atlantic fleet.

SWEDISH KING ILL.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 9.—(P)—King Gustaf V of Sweden was operated on today for removal of a large bladder stone. The King's condition was "quite satisfactory," Professor John Hellstrom said afterward.

Roswell Man Admits Misuse Of Food Stamps

Mike Feckoury Pleads Guilty in U. S. Court Here.

Mike Feckoury, 60, Roswell merchant, pleaded guilty in federal court yesterday to two counts of a grand jury indictment charging him with presenting false claim to a total of $220 worth of surplus commodity food stamps.

Feckoury, the first person in Georgia to be charged with misuse of the food stamps, allegedly purchased the stamps from people who were eligible to receive them and cashed them without ever having issued food for them.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood deferred passing sentence on the grocer until later in the term. Feckoury was indicted by a grand jury during the last term of court.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

With all the stories about more and more folk buying and riding bicycles it's a wonder we don't read that the supply has been exhausted. But I hope the nation runs out of motorcycles first. Not that I have any personal objection to motorcycles—if they'd stay off my street after bedtime. They annoy not only me but all the dogs in the neighborhood. I forgive and try to forget but the dogs brood over it for hours and voice their complaints to one another.

Pacific Mutual Life Underwriters are Agents of Defense
Life Insurance itself is a vital factor in the Nation's Victory Program . . . and the agents who represent this great institution are, in fact, defense workers.

While Pacific Mutual has no priorities . . . no production schedules . . . no military significance, it is, in its particular field, as important as are the tanks and airplanes of battle. While they are busy defending against aggression from without . . . Pacific Mutual is on the job building national security from within.

In no other country have people built sturdier bulwarks against personal adversity. Nowhere else are people as well off as in this country. Nowhere else in the world have the blows of misfortune been softened as they have been in our own nation . . . with insurance aiding us to share our common hazards.

The Life Underwriter . . . the Agent in your community who represents Pacific Mutual . . . has helped make the country strong . . . and only a strong people can maintain a strong defense permanently.

sin ever mantled man's face with the flush of shame. The Sabbath antedates all arts and sciences. It was here before Enoch built a city, or Jabel stretched a tent, or Jubal invented instruments of music, or Tubal-Cain became an artificer in brass or iron. It is older than murder. Cain walked away from his altar of worship to murder his brother Abel.

"Its sunlight flashed into the face of the first baby that ever crowded on its mother's arm. It was a companion in Eden of that tree of Life whose fruit gave immortality to the body. And its glory ennobles the antitypical tree of Life in the Paradise of God, as seen in the apocalyptic visions of John, the revelator.

"Yes, it will survive the deluge of fire, as it survived the deluge of water. When the heavens are rolled together as a scroll, and the material world shall be dissolved, the Sabbath will remain. The thunders of the final judgment shall not shake its everlasting pillars.

"It came before death, and when death is dead, it will be alive. The devil found it on his first visit to the earth, and its sweet and everlasting rest will be shoreless and bottomless after he is cast, with other Sabbath-breakers, into the lake of fire.

"Yes, as it commenced before man needed a Mediator between himself and God, so it will be an eternal heritage of God's people when the mediatorial Kingdom of Jesus Christ is surrendered to the Father, and God shall be All in All. Thou venerable and luminous Institution of God!"

As I read the above words from the eloquent preacher of a half-century ago, I find myself repeating the lines of one of Isaac Watts' great hymns:

This is the Day the Lord hath made;

He calls the hours His own;

Let Heaven rejoice, let earth be glad,

And praise surround the Throne.

Today He rose and left the dead,

And Satan's empire fell;

Today the saints His triumph spread,

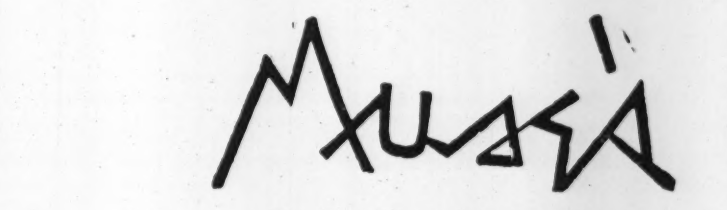

And all His wonders tell.

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Paul Butler Jr., 7-year-old son of Councilman Paul H. Butler, was still in "serious" condition at Grady hospital last night as the result of a 14-foot fall Sunday afternoon. He suffered a fractured skull when he fell from the second floor through a shaft used by firemen to get to the first floor at No. 5 fire station at Spring and Peters street.

"Out to Win" will be the subject of an address by Roy Gentry to members of the Second and Third Grade Teachers' Club at 2:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Woman's Club, it was announced yesterday.

"Civilian Responsibility on the Edge of Tomorrow," "Creative Religion," "Relationships in a World at War," and "Creative Post-War Planning" will be subjects discussed by members of five young women's clubs at the annual seminar tonight at the Y. W. C. A. A play, "Lights Up for Total Defense," also will be presented.

Norman King Jr., 25, 581 Ponce de Leon avenue, who drank a quantity of poison Saturday after he had been rejected by the Army, was in "only fair" condition at Grady hospital last night, according to physicians.

Election of Hugh L. Smith, a native of Sparks, Ga., and a World War No. 1 pilot, to a vice presidency of the American Airlines was learned here today.

Twenty-one new tires, valued at more than $275, were stolen Sunday night from the J. S. Hunt Service Station, 740 Moreland avenue, S. E., it was reported to police yesterday. Police said the thieves entered the station by breaking the glass in a rear door.

D. T. Babcock Gospel Chorus will sing at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Big Bethel church.

Dr. Louie D. Newton is in Mt. Vernon, Ill., today for two addresses at the state convention of Baptist laymen of Illinois. He will return to Atlanta tomorrow.

Home Park-Peters Park Civic League will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Home Park school auditorium. Instruction for auxiliary firemen on the handling of incendiary bombs will be given by members of the fire department.

Atlanta Camera Club will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the Georgian Terrace hotel. H. J. Phillips, nationally known creator of pictorial photographs, will give a demonstration of making "salon"

Biddle Explains Assignment of Negro Guard

Man Placed Here Through Civil Service for Training.

A Negro guard employed at the federal prison in Atlanta was hired through civil service channels and assigned here for training purposes, Attorney General Francis Biddle said last night. In response to an inquiry, Biddle said, the Negro guard was assigned to the federal prison in Atlanta for training purposes and added, "He was certified to us by the Civil Service Commission in accordance with regular procedure. Our reports show he is doing his work efficiently." Warden S. V. Sanford denied that white guards had resigned because of the new member of the guard personnel. He has been detailed to duty in the Negro barracks, he said. Assignment of a Negro as a guard at the prison here is believed to be the first such case in history.

U. S. May Form Defense School At Georgia U.

Sanford Confers With Army Head on Possibilities.

Possibilities of establishing a civilian defense school at the University of Georgia were discussed yesterday by Chancellor S. V. Sanford and Captain John N. Dick, of the Army's chemical warfare service.

Dr. Sanford said 10 schools for training civilians in home defense measures were to be established at the universities throughout the country under the direct supervision of the War Department. Although each school will have only 75 students at a time, a tract of some 20 acres is essential, the chancellor said, because small incendiary bombs will be dropped, makeshift buildings will be set afire, and other emergencies will be simulated in order to insure realistic training.

Instructors at each school will be 25 enlisted men. Dr. Sanford said he understood the courses for each group of students would last about three weeks. After receiving their training the students will return to their communities to aid in teaching other civilians.

Chancellor Sanford said if he grasped the requirements correctly he thought the university was equipped to serve as one of the schools and he had asked Captain Dick to go to Athens to confer with officials there.

Dr. Sanford said he did not know when a decision would be reached, adding the Army officer planned to visit the University of Florida and Auburn after leaving Georgia.

Camp Will Ask Jury Probe Into Stewart's Case

State Labor Department Ex-Official Welcomes Federal Inquiry.

The federal grand jury will be asked to investigate alleged political activity of J. E. B. Stewart, suspended official of Georgia's State Labor Department—and Stewart says that's just what he wants.

In a letter to Lawrence Camp, United States district attorney, for north Georgia, Stewart said he "urgently requested" study of evidence against him presented "at the alleged hearing of the Civil Service Commission," adding: "I have done no wrong and will welcome the opportunity to defend any accusation honestly conceived."

Camp announced the case would be presented to the grand jury, but emphasized it would not be done "as a result of any request by Mr. Stewart."

The federal Civil Service Commission recently held Stewart had violated the Hatch act, which prohibits political activity by public officeholders paid in part or entirely by federal funds. The commission recommended Stewart's dismissal as director of the bureau of unemployment compensation. When Stewart refused to resign at request of Governor Talmadge, the chief executive suspended him.

40 New French Warships Given Nazis, Report

Craft Handed Over by Vichy, Russian News Agency Learns.

LONDON, March 9.—(P)—The Russian news agency Tass reported from Cairo tonight that about 40 French warships still building at the time of the French armistice of June, 1940, have been handed over by the Vichy government to Germany.

Among them, said the account from Tass' Cairo correspondent, was the battleship Clemenceau, which was at Brest, and an 8,000-ton cruiser.

"Many" submarines also have been transferred to the Germans, it reported. "An agreement between Vichy and the Germans for gradual transfer of a large part of the French navy to the Germans was reached a long time ago," it said. "Under this plan, (Admiral Jean) Darlan recently undertook to turn over to them the battleship Dunkerque after repairs at Toulon."

THIS MAP SHOWS WHY YOU MUST BUDGET YOUR TIRE MILES

NOW you see the real urgency of the rubber situation. As a patriotic American you must make your present tires last as long as possible.

Suppose our 29,000,000 cars were taken off the road. The nation's efficiency and war effort would be crippled. Immediate demand for more buses, trucks, trains and trolleys would divert our precious supply of steel, rubber and man-power from vital war production.

You have been wanting to do something for America. Today you can. There is a simple, practical way to make your tires last to the utmost limit. Drive to a responsible tire dealer. Find out the mileage left in your tires. Then budget this precious mileage to last as long as possible for necessary driving.

Cut your driving down to absolute essentials. Pool your car with those of your neighbors, in driving to work, to market, etc. Use one car instead of half a dozen.

Patriotism does not demand that you lay up your car. Just the opposite. Real conservation requires that you keep your car in service for the duration of war as part of America's essential transportation system. Don't think of it as a "pleasure car". It's a war car now.

Twisting Takes Inches Off Your Waistline

By Ida Jean Kain.

There are only about 10 per cent of the women who can pass this waistline test. With thumb and forefinger, pinch your waist at either side and see how much fat you can pick up. It should not be more than half an inch. Too much is just a spare tire—and a sign that you are not really fit.

As you take the test, it is natural to draw yourself up to your full regal height to keep your waist from seeming unnecessarily thick. If you can make a habit of stretching through the midsection, without hunching your shoulders or building up tension through the shoulder girdle, you can gradually tone the muscles and take a considerable tuck in your waist measure.

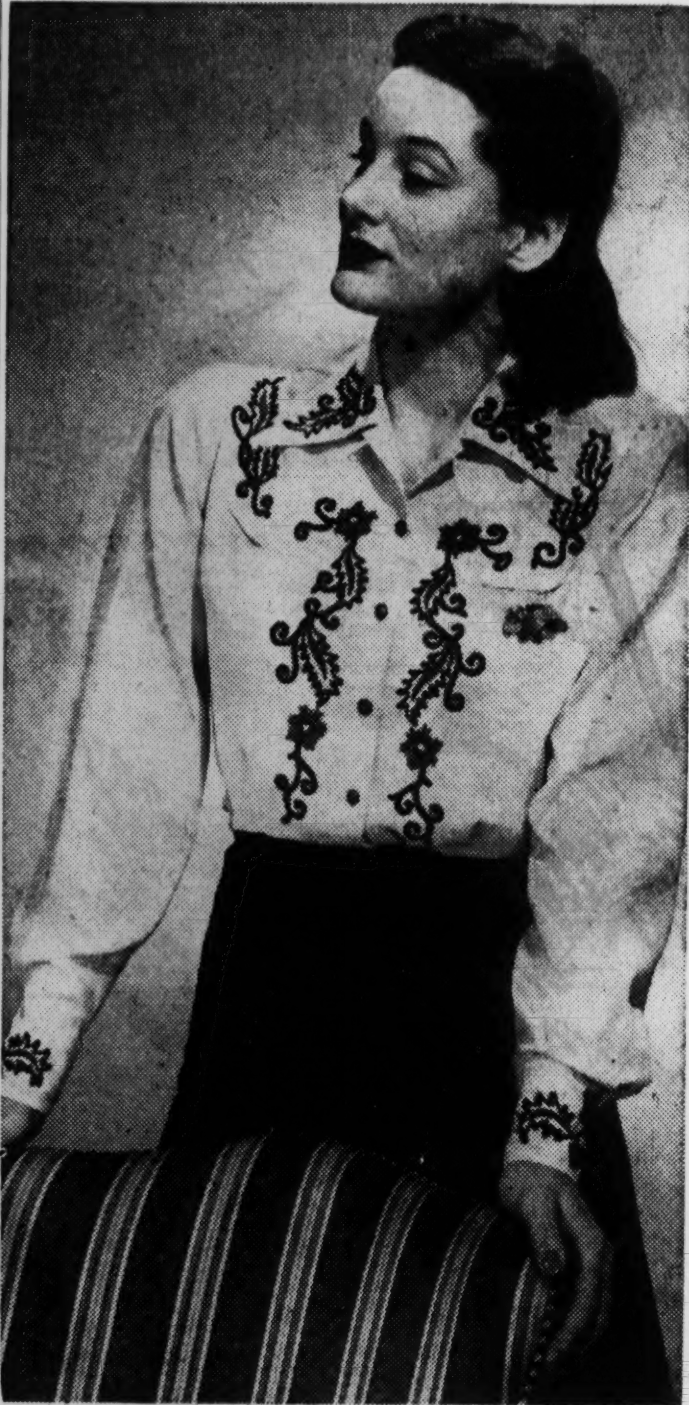

But a surplus of long standing demands more drastic action. You have to work it off in a series of stretches, twists and bends that tug at the muscles and squeeze the fat cells. Besides trimming you down, these will put you in trim.

You can do one good exercise before getting up in the morning. Reach up and grasp the headboard of the bed with both hands, and pull up with the arms as you push down with the feet. Make yourself as long as you can. Hold it for a second, then relax. Repeat this several times.

In any specific exercise, what you do with the other body segments determines part of the value. So when you stand up and stretch, make a point of keeping your shoulders as relaxed as possible while pulling your ribs and hips apart. Clasp your hands on top of your head, elbows turned out at sides, and slowly bend side-ward as you continue your midriff stretch. Relax, bend to the other side.

Hold your arms straight out at the sides, shoulder level and parallel with the floor, and watch yourself in a mirror as you try to move your shoulders over to one side while holding hips perfectly still. Do not let hips jut out to other side. Relax and repeat in opposite direction.

Now try a twist: Stand with back of hips anchored against a heavy table or flat-topped desk and clasp hands back of neck. Do not hunch the shoulders any more than you can help, and have elbows out at sides. First, stretch through the midriff, then turn shoulders side-ward. Hold, then turn shoulders around to other side.

Yale Boys Pick Margaret Hayes for Prom

go to Ingrid Bergman. She's other, Edgar Rice Burroughs' thrillers to the coming year. And here is a surprise: Sol has just signed a new deal with RKO. He will keep his Tarzan yells on that lot. It is really funny the way Johnny and Maureen both protested to the high heavens about being typed in "Tarzan" pictures—and here they leave M-G-M and walk right into another series.

Evidently, the Yale boys are not taking a leaf out of the Harvard Lampoon—and Lamponers. Margaret Hayes has received an official invitation from the junior prom committee, class of '43, that any girl would be proud to have from the lads of old Eli. Where Harvard blasts Yale bails 'em with sugar. The letter reads: "You have been unanimously selected as the most attractive movie actress to be seen this fall in New Haven. We realize that this honor, if it may be called such (what modesty!) means little to you, but it is our custom to invite our choice each year to attend the Yale Junior Prom. Too bad Maggie didn't get the bid until too late to fly back to the dance, which was held March 6.

Well, I guess Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan are fated to be teamed in "Tarzan" pictures forever. Johnny goes into the Sol Lesser "Tarzan" picture with Maureen and there are two

Girl May Judge Date By His Popularity With the Other Boys

By Dixie George

Dear Dixie:

I have just entered a new school. I would like to know what is the best approach to use to get acquainted with strange girls without going around with the other fellows. I am reasonably handsome and wear nice looking clothes.

J. C. D. Your lone wolf attitude may be satisfactory for the time being, but I would advise you to cultivate the boys as well as the girls, for it is always a good idea to be popular with your own sex.

Since you are in school with the girls, there is naturally an informal casual acquaintance existing. The thing to do would be to develop that slight and informal acquaintance into something more serious and intimate.

The fact that you are a newcomer to the school will be a good talking point, so you might use it to good advantage by asking their advice about certain matters. Ask them about the school, if spring dances are a part of the commencement program; if there is a baseball team at the school. Ask them to give you some good pointers as to school affairs and activities. Let them know you are a newcomer and ask them to go to a show with you sometime for a "get-acquainted date."

It is not so hard to know the girls when you are in school with them, for there is so much in common between you that it is a natural drawing card. Making a good impression upon them at first is important, but not so much as keeping the good impression. I really think that you would do much better if you made friends with the boys first and met their girls friends. By being the lone wolf and not going around with the other boys, you will tend to make the girls suspicious of you and wonder why you are not popular with the boys.

MAN MUST FORGET HIS FRIEND'S WIFE

Dear Dixie:

I am a young man 30 years old. Still have my job, but expect to be in the Army before very long. I have never thought much about marriage, for frankly I have not met any girl in whom I was especially interested.

I have found her now, and she is the wife of one of my best friends. I never realized how much I loved her, until it suddenly dawned upon me that she belonged to some one else. She is very much in love with her husband and says she is very happy. I have told her how much I love her and she has cast me aside with a "Oh, get yourself a real girl and forget me." What do you think I should do, try to forget her? I will have to go to the Army before very long and I would like to know just what the future holds for me regarding this girl.

ALEX. By all means forget this girl. If she tells you she loves her husband and is happily married, what makes you think you have a chance to win her? I do not think you are showing very good sense to be making love to the wife of a man whom you consider such a good friend. Remember she does not care for you. She has rejected you, and if you keep on after her, you are not only playing a losing game and putting yourself in a very foolish position but in addition you are being a traitor to your friend. I think you can prove

A Daily Ration of Vitamin B Aids in Retaining Youth

By Dr. William Brady.

For the past 10 years or more readers of this column have been assuring us that their gray or graying hair has had more or less of its original color restored since they began taking a regular ration of iodine. For the past four or five years we have been mentioning here from time to time the observation of nutrition laboratory investigators that rats for example, become prematurely gray on a diet adequate in all other respects but deficient or lacking in vitamin B (B2, riboflavin), and when this vitamin is restored to the diet the natural color is presently restored to the animals' hair.

This past year some skilled publicity artist contrived to get an announcement published in a popular magazine that it was now pretty well established that one of the entities or factors in the vitamin B complex, para-aminobenzoic acid (called "paba" for short) is the anti-gray hair factor. This item, copied by many other publications, created a brisk demand for "paba." As a matter of fact there is as much if not more scientific or experimental evidence that at least one other vitamin B complex factor, pantothenic acid, prevents graying of the hair as there is for the former. So, if you ask me, I say I would take not any one factor but the entire natural vitamin B complex, to keep my hair from turning gray—if any vitamin or other agent can do so in any circumstance.

What do I really think about it? Oh, I don't know, and that's the truth, but I'm a credulous cuss and I take my daily supplement of vitamin B complex, along with breakfast, more faithfully than ever, now that I'm worried about my hair turning gray. All I can say about it is that if it does no good at all it can do no harm, and on the whole I believe nearly everybody would be the better in general health for the regular practice of supplementing the ordinary diet with a good daily ration of vitamin B complex.

When it comes to preservation of the characteristics of youth another entity or factor of the B complex is more essential than the two already mentioned, in my opinion. That is vitamin B2 (otherwise known as vitamin B or riboflavin). When the food is poor in vitamin B for a considerable length of time there is general weakness, nervous depression, deterioration of tone, diminished vitality and premature onset of the conditions of old age.

One of those conditions is wrinkles in the skin. Some persons have more wrinkles at 30 or 40 than others have at 60. Wrinkles spell nutritional deficiency, particularly, I believe, deficiency of vitamin G.

There is an old popular belief that people who consume large amounts of milk have fine complexion. Well, fresh milk is probably the best natural food source of vitamin G.

Anne Vaughn Weaver Speaks To Art Association Today

By SALLY FORTH.

IN ADDITION to being a sculptor of note, Anne Vaughn Weaver, is an author as well. She speaks today at the High Museum of Art to members of the Atlanta Art Association. Her talk will concern stone cutting and will be accompanied by a demonstration. She chose sculpture as the medium through which to express herself and is an authority on this subject.

Anne is a native of Selma, Ala., and is a close friend of Mrs. Mark Cooper Pope and the latter's sister, Mrs. Eugene Robbins. Although versatile and talented Anne is only in her twenties, she has made rapid strides in her work. She has exhibited in New York art museums and, after studying art in her native land, she went to Europe to study under famous masters.

Anne is the author of two books, "Frog" and "Boche's Wings," both of which she illustrated. She built her stories around Alabama pickaninies and their original ideas concerning frogs and German airplanes. She graduated from Smith College, where she made an excellent record in her studies, and enjoyed the cultural advantage derived from traveling in the United States and Europe.

WHEN Charlotte Chapman married Ray Haskell last December and went to live in Cleveland's fashionable suburb, Shaker Heights, she began housekeeping in a charming flat in one of that city's large apartment houses. One of the first persons she met was Anne (Mrs. John Edwards) Walker, who lives on the same floor and who has become one of her best friends.

It so happens that Anne is the niece by marriage of Mrs. Harry Indell, and she is coming to Atlanta soon to attend the marriage of her cousin, Barbara Indell, to Walter Loughridge. Which is the reason that Charlotte's mother, Mrs. Ed Chapman, has set the date of her luncheon for Barbara on April 1. You see, that will be after Anne's arrival, and she will be a sort of special guest at the party. She will accompany her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Walker, and her sister, Betty Walker, to Atlanta, the latter to be Barbara's maid of honor.

Other affairs planned for Barbara include the cocktail party at which she will share honors next Friday with another bride-elect, Ruthanna Butters, Clyde and Frances King will be the hosts and they will entertain at 5:30 o'clock at their home on Lullwater road.

On Saturday, March 21, Mrs. E. A. Erwin and her daughter, Ethel (Mrs. George) Archer, will give a kitchen shower for Barbara at the apartment on Peachtree Memorial drive. Jeannette Estes has set her party in Barbara's honor for Saturday, March 28.

PRETTY Mary Noble is dashing hither, thither and yon—visiting first here, then there. In fact, she is spending so much time out of town that she's here hardly long enough for her friends to entertain her at pre-nuptial parties! Her marriage to John Cosby, of Nashville, Tenn., will be an event of April 11, you know, their engagement having been an important recent announcement.

Mary just returned yesterday from Nashville, where she spent the weekend with friends. This morning she leaves for Atlantic Beach, Fla., where she will visit a former schoolmate, Mrs. Roy Fricks. A number of informal affairs are being planned for Mary's entertainment while she is there. Incidentally, she expects to return home during the weekend.

In the meantime, Mary's Atlanta friends are going ahead with plans for parties to be given when she returns from Florida. Their idea is that, if definite dates are set, Mary will have to stay at home no matter what fascinating out-of-town invitation might come her way!

One of these affairs is the dinner party at which Mrs. Ed Dodd will be hostess on Friday evening, March 20. This event will honor both Mary and John, who will be in Atlanta that weekend. And on Saturday, March 21, Mrs. Fred Windham will compliment Mary at a luncheon.

Mary and John have not yet completed final details for their wedding, the plans for which and other parties will be announced at an early date.

Mrs. Dewey Plans Reception For Mrs. Hunter on March 18

Mrs. Walter Rountree Hunter Jr., who before her recent marriage was Miss Jeanne Redwine, of Atlanta and Fayetteville, will be central figure at the reception at which Mrs. Malcolm H. Dewey will be hostess on Wednesday, March 18, at her home on Clifton road. One hundred and fifty guests have been invited to meet the lovely bride, whose marriage to Mr. Hunter was quietly solemnized in Quitman on February 21.

Receiving with Mrs. Dewey and Mrs. Hunter will be the latter's mother, Mrs. Hill P. Redwine, of Fayetteville, and Mrs. Walter R. Hunter Sr., of Quitman. Mrs. T. O. Marshall, of Americus, aunt of Mr. Hunter, and Mrs. Carmichael Greer, of Loudon, Tenn., cousin of Mrs. Hunter, will pour tea.

Assisting in entertaining will be the honor guest's sister, Mrs. Wilbur Rountree, of Thomaston; Mrs. J. Sam Guy, Mrs. Harry Redwine and Miss Elizabeth Redwine, of Fayetteville; Miss Olivia Wise, of Fayetteville; Mrs. Walter Stapleton and Miss Mary Hunter, of Savannah; Miss Sarah Smith, of Lawrenceville; Miss Katherine Jones, of Thomaston, and Miss Hattie Mina Reid, of Madison.

Lewis Skidmore To Address Meeting of Local Pen Women

Lewis Skidmore of High Museum of Art will speak at the meeting of Atlanta branch, National League of American Pen Women, on Wednesday at 11:30 o'clock, on the mezzanine of the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. He will talk on "Symbolism," and be introduced by Mrs. J. T. DeLlesselline, chairman of lectures.

A special feature of the program will be a round table discussion at which members will give brief resumes of their field of lecturing. Miss St. John Barnwell will discuss her experiences in "Art"; Mrs. Alex B. Brown, of the AWVS Speakers' Bureau, "Preparing a Talk on Civilian Defense"; Mrs. Harold Castleberry, of Gainesville, "Newspaper Writing"; Mrs. Stewart Clark, "Historical Stories"; Mrs. Roy Chamblee, "Art and Interior Decorating"; Mrs. J. T. DeLlesselline, "Astrology as a Science"; Mrs. A. M. Elton, "A Girl's Place in the Present Crisis"; Mrs. Lon Grove, "Music"; Mrs. J. E. Hays will discuss "History and Research"; Mrs. R. H.

Parties Are Given For Mrs. J. H. Paul

Mrs. J. H. Paul, of New York, vice president of Finch Junior College, who has been at the Biltmore for the past two days, has been the honor guest at a number of informal affairs.

Last evening Dr. and Mrs. Ben Jones were hosts at an informal dinner party at their home on Twenty-eighth street for Mrs. Paul, and on Sunday Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Campbell entertained informally at their home on Wakefield drive for Mrs. Paul.

A group of former students of Finch were guests of Mrs. Paul yesterday afternoon at a tea at the Biltmore. She leaves this afternoon for Birmingham.

On her return she will be an honor guest of Maple Grove 86, on April 2nd, when she will give her official report of board meeting.

Shakespeare Class.

The Shakespeare Class of 1896 was entertained recently at the home of Mrs. George Denman, chairman of the class. The memory test on quotations, taken from "Measure for Measure," the play just finished, was taken by six members of the class. Four having perfect papers were Mesdames Charles Graham, J. C. Elcher, Hines Hill and M. L. Brittain. Mrs. J. C. Fincher won the prize, a beautiful print of a Shakespeare scene. Mrs. Robert Blackburn gave three selections from her book of mammy dialect numbers, which was an enjoyable feature of the program. Antony and Cleopatra was selected for the next class study.

Miss Freeman Wed To Lieut. Holloway At Fort Oglethorpe

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 9. Mrs. Wilbur Summerfield Freeman announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Anne Freeman, to Dr. Charles Edward Holloway, lieutenant, United States Army. The marriage was solemnized in the chapel at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., on February 20, the Rev. Wayne L. Hunter, regimental chaplain, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the late Wilbur Summerfield Freeman, of Claxton, Ga. She attended the Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee and Emory University School of Nursing in Atlanta. Since graduation she has been a member of the surgical staff at the University hospital.

Dr. Holloway is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Holloway, of Atlanta, and is now attached to the 33rd Surgical Hospital unit of the Army of the United States. He attended the University of Georgia and Emory University Medical school, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and Phi Rho Sigma medical fraternity. He interned at Henry Grady and Emory University hospitals in Atlanta and New York Memorial hospital, New York city. Before being called to active duty with the Army, Dr. Holloway was engaged in private practice in Atlanta.

BABIES LOVE MILK

made into rennet-custards

Mothers find that one of the best ways to give baby all the milk he needs is to make some of it each day into tempting rennet-custards. Children love to eat them with a spoon, and thus get more of the valuable nutrition which milk supplies so generously.

You can make these eggless, non-cooked custards in a minute with "Junket" Rennet Tablets—unsweetened, add sugar and flavor to taste. The rennet enzyme makes them digest more readily than plain milk. Widely recommended by doctors for babies and children. At your grocer's and druggist's.

Older children enjoy the flavors and colors of rennet-custards made with "Junket" Rennet Powder. Easier and quicker. At grocer's.

Baby Bix-10c—Made of new Byrene Plastic fabric; covers size; crumb pocket. Easy to keep clean, spot-proof. Pink or blue. Send 10c and front of "Junket" Rennet Powder or Tablets package to "The Junket Food" Co., Hansen's Laboratory, Inc., Dept. 1240, Little Falls, N. Y.

Miss Keck Becomes Bride Of Lieutenant Philip Fisher

ALBANY, Ga., March 9.—Claiming Miss Mary Louise Keck as his bride just a few hours after he received his wings and his reserve lieutenant's commission in the U. S. Army Air Corps, Philip Fitzgerald Fisher, of Atlanta, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., was married Saturday afternoon in the Episcopal church here. Lieutenant Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald Fisher, of Atlanta, is stationed at Turner Field in Albany.

Dr. H. F. Cobey officiated at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends. Pedestal baskets of white gladioli, interspersed with cathedral candelabra holding white tapers beautified the church, in which palms and ferns formed a background for the altar.

The matron of honor was the groom's mother, Mrs. Philip F. Fisher, of Atlanta, and the groom's father gave the bride in marriage. Mrs. Fisher was gowned in sky blue crepe accented by a frilly white straw hat and black accessories. A shoulder spray of white roses completed her costume. The bride was never lovelier than in her wedding dress of sand beige which was accented by a demurely veiled hat of periwinkle blue topped with pastel flowers. Blue gloves and shoulder spray of spring flowers completed her costume.

Following the ceremony the bride couple was honored at a reception at a local hotel, the occasion assembling a limited number of friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keck, of Kew Gardens, N. Y., formerly of Cincinnati, Ohio. She is unusually gifted in dramatic art, and majored in that subject in New York. Her only sister is Mrs. William Corlye Johnson, of Atlanta.

Lieutenant Fisher's forebears were original settlers of Rochester, N. Y. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Fisher and the late Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Fisher, of Atlanta.

The young couple resides temporarily in Albany, but will later move to Atlanta.

DiMag, Rolfe Still Holding Out

Four of Last 6 Yankees Sign Their Papers

Gordon, Keller, Ruffing and Dickey Are Already in Fold.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 9.—(AP) Manager Joe McCarthy announced today the New York Yankees had signed four of their remaining six holdouts.

Those coming to terms, he said, were Second Baseman Joe Gordon, Outfielder Charlie Keller, Pitcher Red Ruffing and Catcher Bill Dickey, leaving Outfielder Joe DiMaggio and Third Baseman Red Rolfe as the only unsigned players.

Gordon has been in St. Petersburg since the opening of spring training, and McCarthy said the other three would leave for camp immediately.

McCarthy, who brought the Yankees here today for a game with the Washington Senators, made the announcement after a telephone conversation with President Ed Barrow in New York.

There was no indication of any change in the status of DiMaggio and Rolfe.

Barrow issued an ultimatum last week that if any players were unsigned upon his arrival at St. Petersburg next Thursday he would bar the entire negotiations. He said he had made a final offer of $40,000 to DiMaggio.

BROWNS BRIGHTEN.

DELAND, Fla., March 9.—(AP) Manager Luke Sewell, of the St. Louis Browns, launched full-scale workouts today with Vern Stephens, kid shortstop from Toledo, holding the major share of attention.

The youngster teamed up with Don Guttridge, formerly with the Cardinals, to make things whizz around the keystone sack. If Stephens lives up to expectations this year, Sewell's burden may be a great deal lighter.

INDIANS BEAT CARDS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(AP) After two were out in the ninth today, Cleveland scored five runs to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game, 7 to 5.

ookie Hank Edwards, outfielder up from Cedar Rapids of the Three-I League, doubled in the tying and winning runs in that big inning, went to third on an error and then scored an extra run for the Indians as Fabian Gaffke singled.

REDS NEED HITS.

TAMPA, Fla., March 9.—(AP) Still suffering from inability to make hits count, the Cincinnati Reds got in a little more tuning up today in preparation for their second Grapefruit game tomorrow at St. Petersburg, when they engage the St. Louis Cardinals.

Whitey Moore, Gene Thompson and Jim Turner are the likely pitchers.

HASLIN TRADED.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 9.—(AP) The San Diego Pacific Coast League Baseball Club today reported a trade of Mickey Haslin, third baseman, for John C. Hill of the Toronto club of the International League.

TIGERS ON FUNDAMENTALS.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 9.—(AP) Manager Del Baker sent his Detroit Tigers to rough a long drill on fundamentals today and planned another tomorrow before the final intra-squad game Wednesday. He said Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Harold Newhouser would share the pitching assignment in the opening exhibition game here Friday against the Cardinals.

Leonard, Griffith To Talk Terms

ORLANDO, Fla., March 9.—(AP) Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, who has been waging a telegraphic war with Emil (Dutch) Leonard, holdout pitcher, announced that the knuckle ball artist had advised he would be here in a day or two to talk terms over.

Leonard was in Chattanooga, Tenn., when he sent the message. Only Saturday Griffith made public his decision to suspend Leonard.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—(AP) Jack Dempsey says America's fighting men ought to be trained to "kick, gouge and knee" their Axis enemies.

"There are no rules in this war," said the former heavyweight champion, here to referee a wrestling match, "and there'll be plenty of hand-to-hand fighting before it's over."

He recommended boxing, wrestling and fencing "as conditioners."

"Boxing and fencing are similar to bayonet fighting in footwork," he explained. "And wrestling teaches a man how to take care of himself in hand-to-hand battle."

Think what a notable contribution to his country Paul Richards would make, in addition to the bonds and stamps he buys in the normal course of events.

In fact, if all the Richardses were placed in a fund to build a bomber, the sponsors would have a flying start.

Tigers Angle For Leonard In York Deal

Big Trade Involving Buck Newsom Is Brewing in Camps.

By JUDSON BAILEY.
ORLANDO, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The biggest trade of the year was brewing today in the camp of the Washington Senators with the Detroit Tigers offering Buck Newsom and Rudy York for Emil (Dutch) Leonard and Jim Vernon. The deal was very warm for March, even in Florida, and seemed to be simmering until the arrival tonight of Leonard and the likelihood that the Tigers would bolster their bid with a third player. Jack Zeller, Detroit's general manager, was in conference here today with Clark Griffith, president of the Senators, and it was learned that Leonard is on his way to camp, even though he has not yet signed a contract.

Griffith likes Newsom, who won 61 games in the three years prior to last season and who labored for Washington from 1935-37. He is loathe to give up Vernon, a promising 24-year-old first baseman, who is rated one of the two or three really first-class players on the Washington club. He batted .299 last year, 40 points more than York, although the big Cherokee has an impressive long-time record as a slugger.

Both York and Newsom are holdouts, and this, in addition to their dismal showings last season, when Newsom won only 12 games, is influencing Zeller's desire to trade them. The 31-year-old Leonard, one of the leading knuckle ball pitchers of the big leagues, won 18 games and lost 13 last year.

York, however, is working with the Tigers at their camp in near-by Lakeland.

Gators Schedule Tars, Naval Air Base Nines
GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Acting Director of Athletics Percy Beard today announced a preliminary five-game schedule, well within the policy of limited trips for spring sports teams, for the University of Florida's 1942 baseball team.

The Gators, coached by Sam McAllister, will face the Jacksonville Tars of the Sally League in Jacksonville April 19, and have four contests with the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, May 1 and 8, and in Jacksonville May 2 and 9.

THE LUCKIEST MANAGER

MIAMI, BEACH, Fla., March 9.—The luckiest manager in baseball is now here at Miami, a gnarled old-timer, one of the few people living in the world today who can look to the future with full knowledge of his impending fate. His name is Hans Lobert, the leader of the Philadelphia Phillies.

While harassed hirelings as Du-rocher, Southworth, McKechnie, Wilson, Ott, Frisch and Stengel are brooding over the possibilities of criticism ahead, Hans Lobert carries an untroubled soul. He knows where everyone expects the Phils to finish, and he would be a traitor to form and custom and habit if they finished anywhere else. It almost would be a betrayal of a sacred trust if the Phils finished higher than eighth place.

Lobert knows that once in a while his team is expected to beat somebody. You can't win 'em all—and neither can you lose 'em all.

The Phils are what you might call the National League farm. For years they haven't been pennant winners—but they have been pennant makers. They sent Grover Alexander out to help win pennants for the Cubs and Cardinals. They sent out Bucky Walters to win or help win two pennants for the Reds. They won a pennant for Brooklyn with Dolph Camilli and Kirby Higby.

Looking even further back they didn't hurt the Giants any by selling them Beauty Bancroft—and their Dick Bartell helped the Giants and Tigers to three flags.

As a farm team the Phils have had Branch Rickey's famous Cardinal Chain Gang outclassed. They have all other farm teams outclassed. You can prove this by figures.

Using such names as Alexander, Killifer, Bancroft, Bartell, Camilli, Walters, Higby and one or two more, I can show you where ex-Philadelphia players were vital factors in winning at least 10 pennants for Giants, Cubs, Cardinals, Reds, Dodgers and Tigers. What other farm system has shown any such spectacular results?

The names of ex-Philly stars have been headline luminaries to pennant winners and World Series winners for over 20 years. But while this was taking place the Phils playing for Philadelphia have been making desperate and heroic efforts to keep from falling out of the league into some Class B organization.

It is under these conditions that smiling Hans Lobert, who was one of John McGraw's closest pals, faces the future with confidence. No one expects him to win many ball games. No one expects Mickey Rooney to knock out Joe Louis. Any time the Phils win Manager Lobert should get a wreath of wild apple blossoms. His main job will be to develop two or three good ball players that some other National League team can use in the scramble for the flag.

It would have been somewhat enlightening, for example, to have seen the Phils facing Newark last season. Or any of the three or four preceding seasons.

Mr. Lobert was a trifle indignant when I suggested this matter to him, turning abruptly away. But the wonder is how the Yankees ever won so many pennants and World Series without the Philly farm.

What would have happened to Cubs, Cardinals, Reds, Dodgers and even the Tigers without the Philly support? Don't forget that Dick Bartell was a spark plug for both Giants and Tigers in their drives for a World Series split.

The Phils have been the War-wicks—the King-makers—of baseball. They are like the doctor who could have others, but couldn't save himself.

As a pal of the olden, golden days we attempted to get a prediction as to where the Phils would finish this season. From Hans Lobert, Mr. Lobert should have said, "We expect to develop at least two good ball players—possibly three—for the highest bidder."

But as a loyal employee Hans refused to make any statement, at least any direct statement. "It is yet too early to tell," he said, which is one of the greatest un-

Doubles Teams Ready To Roll In Tenth Meet

35 Already Entered in Annual Constitution Pin Tournery.

Thirty-five couples have signed to bowl in the 10th annual Atlanta Constitution Doubles Saturday at four of the local alleys. Starting times have been set at 11, 2:30, 5 and 8 p. m. No foul line judge will be used.

Among the entrants are some of the more famous local doubles teams, Bill Berry and Jack Sheriff; Joe Chambliss and Ed Pearce; Martha Cleaveland and Johnnie Carter. All have won doubles competition events. Other entrants include Harry Sills and George McGuire, Mrs. Blick and Mrs. McCoy; Marcellite Pearce and Allie Kilpatrick; George Tyler and partner; Perry Belcher and Ben Goodwin; the French brothers, Bob and Bill, and many others.

One of the most coveted prizes of the season will be given to each of the men or women who have the highest individual game, whether they bowl in the handicap division or the nonleague group.

The nonleague division will include anyone who does not have an average compiled through league play. Gold medals will be awarded the winners of this class.

George Small and John Conyers, who were the first winners 10 years ago, again will compete. They have never missed the tournament.

Get your entry in today. Last year 235 couples competed, setting a new world's record in a one-day doubles tournament and the goal this year will be at least 250. The winners of this meet will represent the city in the national tournament in Youngstown, Ohio, with all expenses paid by the AABF.

Most of the leagues will play two games a week this season. This is made possible by the new war time and the increase of daylight.

Interest in amateur baseball, which is co-operating with the national physical fitness program, is at a peak and officials are expecting a banner year.

Big Wins Features Boys' Club Meet

Overwhelming victories featured the first round of the city Boys' Club basketball tournament last night at the Atlanta Boys' Club. The ABC Cracker defeated Decatur, 42 to 8, WOJ whipped Madox, 48 to 12; JTC conquered ABC Tigers, 25 to 8; and the Rinky Dinks beat Druid Hills, 35 to 18.

derstatements I've ever heard. Or overstatements.

There is a rumor around the Grapefruit or the Citrus Circuit that Branch Rickey, of the Cardinals, is threatening to sue the Phils. Branch thought he had the best farm system baseball ever had known, as far as the National League is concerned. But along come the Phils to win the last three pennants for the Reds and Dodgers with Bucky Walters, Dolph Camilli and Kirby Higby.

If you don't think so, remove these three actors from the scene and the Cardinals would have won at least two pennants, possibly three. The Phils, finishing last, have won the Cardinals on the spot. It just so happens that Branch Rickey never was smart enough to add the Phils to his farm chain, as other clubs have done.

Just what the system—when a ball club helps to win 10 pennants for other clubs, yet keeps finishing last—is one of those intricate problems that needs further thought.

Cracker Outfield Packs Speed

Top Candidates Hit Well Over .300 Last Year

Thomassie Gets Extra Coaching; Earl Browne Only Absentee.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.
ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 9.—The Cracker have three centerfielders to work into the three positions vacated since last season, and unless developments will it otherwise, Manager Paul Richards believes the best arrangements will be Charlie Woodall, left; Leon Treadaway, center, and Pete Thomassie, right.

Last season Woodall played center for Waycross, and in the closing month of the season was great. He has been hailed as a fine prospect. He has the build and speed.

Treadaway played center for the Wilson, N. C., team, while Thomassie patrolled the middle garden for Savannah.

Woodall batted .323, Treadaway .319 and Thomassie .336.

WOODALL VS. O'BRIEN.
A hot battle for the left field spot may develop between Woodall and Tommy O'Brien, the former Tennessee Vol. O'Brien played left for Savannah last year. He has good hitting power.

The 42 outfield will not rank with the combination of Marshall, Bates and Mailho, of course, but it has many good points, including speed.

As a high, cool wind fanned Francis Field Manager Richards spent the morning half of the workout today in drilling the squad in certain fundamentals, including the art of sliding and base running. The afternoon session was devoted largely to batting practice.

THOMASSIE WORKS.
Thomassie started on the first of many extra hours he'll be drilled to improve his fielding. Richards plans to make him shag flies at least an hour a day. Faulty fielding caused him to be sent to Savannah for more experience last season, and he still has improvements to make before he is Class A-1 caliber.

All squad members were scheduled to be at work today, but Earl Browne, veteran first baseman-outfielder, hasn't reported as yet.

Rice Smashes World Mark For 2 1-2 Miles

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP) Gregory Rice, the former Notre Dame distance track flyer, clipped more than seven seconds off the world record for the two-and-one-half-mile run in the ninth annual Catholic University games here tonight. His time was 11 minutes, 32.6 seconds. Georgetown's Al Blozis and Gil Dadds, of Boston, established new met records in the shot put and mile, respectively.

Blozis turned in a disappointing 55-foot, 4 1/2-inch performance. It was good enough, however, to crack his own met record of 54 feet, 6 inches, established a year ago. Dadds, the track sensation of the winter season, captured the Edward Killion Memorial mile in 4:15.7, which earned him the distinction of finest performance of the games.

Favorites Beaten In Intercollegiate

KANSAS CITY, March 9.—(AP) Kentucky State College, of Murray, last year's runner-up and this year's favorite, fell in a stunning upset in today's opening round of the National Intercollegiate tournament.

The quality of the field was demonstrated in the afternoon round when East Central State, Ada, Okla., and High Point, N. C., College, were forced into overtime to win.

East Central State disposed of Kentucky State, 46-45, mostly through the efforts of Harley Day's 14 points and finely-gear teamwork. Bill Keene, 6-foot-8-inch red-headed center, herded High Point to a 44-37 victory over Yankton, S. D., College.

Youth Trend Steps Up Southern Talent Changes

Crackers Signed 60 Players in 1941; Barons Topped League in 1940 With 73.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
An accent on youth is stepping up the turnover of ball players in the Southern Association.

Secretary Jimmy Sanders thumbed through his contract book yesterday, and found that last season's pennant-winning Atlanta Crackers reported signing a total of 60 players in 1941—up five from the previous two seasons, and comparing with a moderate 46 contracts registered in 1936.

Nashville, winner of the league's Shaughnessy playoffs and the Dixie series, reported 40 players signed in 1941, an increase of seven from 1940.

The reason, says Sanders, is acquisition of young players early in the season, who stay with the club during spring training and then are farmed out. Often they return to the Southern Association club late in the season.

Biggest squad increases were reported by Birmingham, which listed contracts for 73 players in 1940, and 56 in 1941. Previously the club averaged about 40 contracts yearly.

Chattanooga has been an exception. In 1936 the club listed 64 players, in 1937 it was down to 44, and last season it reported contracts for only 38. New Orleans listed 55 in 1939, registered 44 in 1941.

Knoxville's Smokies averaged from 60 to 64 contracts a year, says Sanders, with young players making up the bulk. Little Rock usually lists about 40, and Memphis has boosted its roster from 34 players in 1939 to 44 in 1941.

Sanders estimates approximately 400 contracts are filed with the league's headquarters annually, each clearing first through the office of William G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues at Durham, N. C.

Kirby, Tainter Top Favorites In East Coast

Play Begins Today in 18th Annual Tournament at St. Augustine

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Defending Champion Georgia Tainter, of Fargo, N. D., sensation of the Florida inter circuit, and Dot Kirby, of Atlanta, will be favorites when play opens tomorrow in the 18th annual Florida East Coast Golf Tournament.

Miss Tainter last week captured the South Atlantic tourney at Ormond Beach, having previously triumphed in the Palm Beach and Miami Biltmore contests.

The North Dakota girl defeated Miss Kirby 6 and 5 in the finals of the Miami tourney.

Hogan and Sarazen Win Way to Semi-Finals of Miami-Biltmore 4-Ball Meet.

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The favored combination of Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan were knocked out of the second round of the Miami Biltmore four-ball golf tournament today by the up-and-coming team of Chandler Harper and Herman Keiser, one up in 36 holes.

Picard sought to keep the match alive with long, thrilling putts on the 33d and 34th holes, but the new young team was playing too excellent a game.

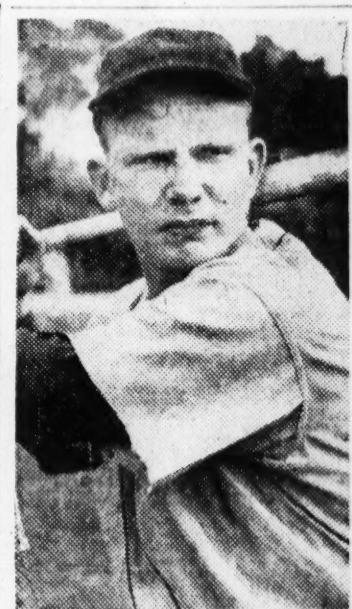

Picard sank a 100-yard eight-iron shot on the 385-yard 10th hole for an eagle two.

Harper and Keiser had a steady 33-33—67 for the final 18, against 35-32—67 for Nelson and Picard.

Meanwhile, Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen, last year's winners, won their way to the semi-finals by defeating Herman Barron and Tony Penna, 3 and 2. Barron, trying to come back, shipped in to the cup from 40 feet away for a birdie on the 53-yard 15th, but Hogan duplicated his performance with a 30-foot putt that halved the hole. Hogan and Sarazen shot a 33 on the outgoing nine of the afternoon round against a 34 for Barron and Penna.

Dixie Handicap Field Topped By Whirlaway

$20,000 Added Race Is Scheduled May 6 at Pimlico.

BALTIMORE, March 9.—(AP)—Whirlaway, the 1941 "horse of the year," tops a list of 71 nominations made public today for the $20,000-added Dixie handicap at Pimlico May 6.

Picard, coming three days before the Prekness stakes, probably will be the first important start of the year for Whirlaway, kept idle this winter by cancellation of Santa Anita's meeting.

Also nominated for the mile and three-sixteenths Dixie were most of the "name" horses that ran in the Widener handicap at Hialeah Saturday, including Market Wise, Midland, Challedon, Attention and Alsab.

The Rhymer, winner of the Widener, was not nominated, but the Dixie, but Best Seller and Olympus, which finished second and third, were named.

Among the other eligibles are Haltal, last year's Dixie winner; Our Boots, Flor, Sir Marlboro, Get Off, Dit, Dispose, Gramps, Gallahadon and Porter's Cap.

$1,000 Ceiling Is Approved on Soil Payments

House Also Refuses To Limit Parity to Farmers.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP) The house tentatively approved a ceiling of $1,000 on individual soil conservation payments today, refused to limit parity payments to farmers, and put off until Wednesday a decision on an administration-opposed bill against sales of government-owned surplus commodities at below-parity prices.

After adjournment in the midst of debate over the commodities sales bill, Majority Leader McCormack, of Massachusetts, reiterated his opposition to the bill on below-parity sales, which was written into the farm appropriation bill by the house agriculture committee. He said he would seek its elimination Wednesday.

His opposition, he added, was not decreased by adoption of an amendment permitting below-parity sales of commodities for relief and of deteriorated grain for feed purposes and for use in the manufacture of alcohol.

Farm bloc proponents viewed the relaxation as having increased the chances for the prohibition, but conceded they had a major fight on their hands to retain it in the bill.

The amendment putting a top of $1,000 on conservation payments to any individual or corporation was offered by Representative Johnson, Democrat, Oklahoma, and approved, (subject to a roll-call vote later) on a voice vote after an effort by Representative Rees, Republican, Kansas, to cut it to $500 was turned down.

An amendment by Representative Pace, Democrat, Georgia, to include in the exemption cotton sold for bagging, insulation and other experimental uses was accepted on a voice vote. Pace told the house it would "meet practically all objections" to the original ban on below-parity sales.

Mrs. Herren Is Dead Here At Age of 88

Was Member of First Baptist Church for 75 Years.

Mrs. Margaret Little Herren, 88, mother of Charlie B. Herren, widely known Atlanta restaurateur, died yesterday in a private hospital after a short illness. She resided at 1500 Rogers avenue, southwest.

Born in Villa Rica, she was the daughter of Caroline Porter Eisher and Francis M. Little. She was the widow of W. Herren, well known Atlanta businessman. Affiliated with the First Baptist church for approximately 75 years, she was its oldest member.

She was a small girl during the War Between the States and remembered many details of the action in this vicinity. Mrs. Herren remained fairly active until her last illness and took a keen interest in needlework.

She also is survived by two daughters, Mrs. L. M. Stanley and Mrs. Myrtle Slear.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

Subs Reported Hijacking Oil Of Fishermen

No Sources Would Confirm Reports Received Here.

There was no confirmation from any source last night that enemy submarines had been waylaying commercial fishermen off the Georgia coast, although Zach D. Cravey, state commissioner of natural resources, said he had reports this had happened in one or two instances.

According to Cravey's reports, which he said were not confirmed, the vessels had been left stranded after seizure of their oil.

Apprehension of enemy action, Cravey said, has made coastal fishermen reluctant to venture off shore, and skippers have reported difficulty in signing crews.

Inland retail stores already have reported shortages of seafood because of reduced commercial fishing activity.

Cravey meanwhile announced rejection of a request from shrimp supply in the future. Cravey said that the coast be opened to commercial operations.

The commissioner, in a letter to Chief Inspector Perry E. Middleton, said he was forced to deny the request in the interest of true conservation. He reminded fishermen that inner waters are the natural breeding grounds of shrimp, and that temporary benefits which might be gained this year would be offset by a failure of supply in the future.

Cravey said he might extend the shad season beyond March 15 because adverse weather conditions had hampered fishing until recently. Shad are caught in fresh water and operations are not affected by the war.

View Advanced Jewish People Need Leader

Hadassah Head Calls for Popular Figure To Plead Rights.

The Jewish people need a popular leader to plead their rights in Palestine to the nations that will direct postwar justices.

That's the belief of Mrs. Edward Jacobs, of New York City, who as the only woman executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine participated in the round table conference on Jewish-Arab affairs in London in 1937. Mrs. Jacobs is now visiting relatives here.

"They would find the Jew can be made as picturesque and as glamorous as the Arab in a world that is objective and kind," said the white-haired leader of more than 100,000 Jewish women in the international organization, Hadassah.

Mrs. Jacobs, who married an Atlantan and has visited Palestine 14 times since she went there on her honeymoon in 1913, was on her way home when Italy entered the war and Roosevelt made his famous "stab-in-the-back" speech.

The age-old spat between the Arabs and the Jews in Palestine is the crux of the problem there, she admits, but her prediction is that since there are no longer new worlds to conquer the Arabs will move over and allow room for the overflow from Europe.

"It is a firmly held belief that Jews will fit into the new pattern of the Arab countries and there will be mutual benefit," Mrs. Jacobs finished, expressing the hope that after the war the Jews may once more come home to Palestine, a place where they can be themselves.
